HOUSE PAINTER POSES AS MAGNATE, ORDERS $54 DINNER

Howard Hardoncourt, 29, of Texas, Says He Mingled With Oil Men Until He Believed He Was Wealthy.

$10 BANK ACCOUNT RAISED TO $87,110

Wired for Reservation at Jefferson Hotel, Picked $10 a Day Room and Registered as an "Oil Magnate."

Howard Hardoncourt, house painter, of Thurber, Tex., posing as an oil magnate at the Jefferson Hotel, who was arrested yesterday after he had ordered a $54.10 dinner Saturday night, says he has been associating with the oil rich of Dallas and in that way got the idea that he was rich, too.

So he opened a bank account with $10, raised the $10 in his pass book to $87,110 by the simple expedient of placing the necessary figures in front of the 10, supplied himself with some blank checks, wired to the Jefferson for a reservation, came here and registered as an oil magnate and picked a $10-a-day room and began to work up a reputation as a spender.

When Howard, who is 29, was a poor but honest house painter, he had an ambition to become a mechanic. When the war came he enlisted in the ground school for mechanics and was working for a commission at Boston "Tech" when the war ended. He went back home but life in Thurber was dull after Boston, so he borrowed $25 from his father, early in May, and went to Dallas.

Mingled With Magnates.
In Dallas he met a girl. He can't for the life of him remember her name, but she was the daughter of an oil magnate. She said so, anyway, and he had no reason to doubt it, for he was not most of the fathers of Dallas oil magnates. He mingled with the magnates until he felt like one. He bought a $27.50 poplin suit and a Panama hat and an Elk pin. He told the girl he was a magnate, too, but he feared that his house-painter past would rise up to confound him there and decided to come to St. Louis. He signed himself as Fred Leffler, "oil magnate," in wiring for a reservation, and registered under that name and in that capacity and made a payment on the $10-a-day room with a $10 check which was signed with that name.

It happened that President Adams of the American Exchange Bank of Dallas, on which the check was drawn, was at the Jefferson. The check was shown to him. He said it did not look good to him and advised that an inquiry be wired to the bank. This was done and the answer was that Leffler's deposit was limited to $10.

Orders $54.10 Dinner for Two.
Meantime, "Leffler" had gone to the dining room at 7 p. m. Saturday and ordered the following dinner for two:

Fruit cocktail	1.50
Celery, olives	1.00
Omelette	.50
Sweetbread under glass	.50
Baby chickens	1.50
New asparagus	1.20
New peas	1.00
New potatoes	.50
Tom and Jerry	.40
Jefferson salad	.40
Baked Alaska	2.00
Assorted cakes	.50
Cream cheese and jelly	1.50
Deviled coffee	2.50
Cocktails	2.00
Butterine	2.00
Claret	2.00
Champagne	15.00
Flowers for table	10.00
Two boxes $1 cigarettes	2.50
Cigars	2.00
Total	$54.10

House Detective Noonan said that "Leffler" appeared in the lobby with a girl about 8 o'clock, and although Noonan did not see anything definite on "Leffler," he told them they would both be arrested if they ate that dinner. The girl said they would never arrest her, for she was not even going in the dining room.

"Leffler" promised several of the telephone operators gifts of bungalows, money and other things. He offered the House Detective $5000 for some oil stock for which he had paid $1000. Noonan backed out of this deal when he heard payment would be made by check.

Are you going to the Theater or Movies tonight? If so, see Page 19.

DRINKERS PUT ON PAROLE BY JUDGE UNTIL THE DROUGHT

Fines of $5 Stayed With Admonition That Next Appearance Before Prohibition Will Cost $100.

Judge Mix in Police Court today adopted a policy which in individual cases will have the effect of putting the lid on drink before the prohibition laws go into effect. To four defendants charged with being drunk he said:

"I will fine you $5 each, but will stay the fine conditionally. If you are brought in here again before July 1, I will fine you $100, and if you can't pay it I will send you to the Workhouse. If prohibition does not become effective July 1 and you are before me again on a drunkenness charge before Jan. 1, 1920, when the Constitutional amendment goes into effect, the punishment will still be a $100 fine."

He made the four repeat this after him to be sure they understood it.

MAN LOOKING FOR 'BILL AND JIM' STABS DISCHARGED SOLDIER

Walter Raftery, 22 years old, 2328 Division street, a discharged soldier, was stabbed in the abdomen and probably fatally wounded at 1 a. m. today when attacked by one of three men near 3700 Gravois avenue. He was taken to the Baptist Hospital.

Raftery told policemen that he and five companions had hired a service car for a ride last night. When on Gravois avenue one of the tires blew out and he and his companions got out to wait for the chauffeur to make repairs. While he was standing near the curb, three men walked up and asked for "Bill and Jim." Raftery said he did not know anyone by that name.

"Well, we'll introduce you to them," remarked one of the men as he drew a knife and slashed Raftery. Before Raftery's companions could get to his assistance the men had escaped. Raftery believes it was a case of mistaken identity.

$6000 TO MRS. BECKER FOR YEAR

Mrs. Jean Becker, widow of Henry (Kild) Becker, who was shot and killed by highwaymen April 15, obtained an allowance in the Probate Court today of $6000 for her support for one year, while the estate is in process of administration.

In her statement to the court Mrs. Becker said that during her husband's life the expenses of maintaining their home at Compton and Russell avenues amounted to $1000 a month. Mrs. Becker has a daughter who is 5 years old, and her mother and sister who are living with her. Becker left more than $250,000 in personal property and, except for a few bequests to friends and relatives, 60 per cent of the estate goes to his wife and the remainder to his daughter Dorothy.

DISCUSS REQUEST TO INTERVENE IN SEAMAN U. R. SUIT

M. B. Thompson and H. C. Cole Petition to Be Made Defendants in Receivership Case Argued.

QUESTION RIGHT OF DIRECTORS TO ACT

Assert Admission of Insolvency Disqualifies Officials From Protecting Rights of Stockholders.

The petition of William B. Thompson of St. Louis and H. C. Cole of Chester, Ill., for permission to intervene as defendants in the John W. Seaman receivership suit against the United Railways Co., was argued today before Judge Lamm, special master in the receivership proceedings.

The petitioners contend that the company, by filing an admission of insolvency in the Adler receivership proceeding, disqualified itself for the task of defending itself. They hold that stockholders should be permitted to defend the company against the charge of insolvency, and the petition asks that Seaman be required to furnish bond to cover costs of the suit and the possible damages of a receivership.

First Appears for Them.
Henry S. Priest, general counsel for the United Railways Co., spoke in behalf of the intervenors, following the argument of Ford W. Thompson, who represented his father and Cole. The petition was opposed by Ephraim Caplan, attorney for Seaman, and William R. Gentry and I. V. Barth, representing the Leeds Mining Co., a concern which was controlled by the late John T. Milliken.

Thompson argued that the stockholders were satisfied with the progress of the Seaman suit, until the receiver was appointed under the Adler proceedings. He attacked the right of the directors to admit the insolvency of the company, and said such admission should not have been made without sanction of the stockholders. "An Expensive Luxury."

He said the intervenors wished to adopt the answer of the defendant, and file a cross-bill stating that a receiver was an expensive luxury, and demanding either that Seaman give

NUMBER OF SALOONS DROPS 25 IN TWO AND ONE-HALF MONTHS

Licenses in City Show Constant Decrease, Falling 839 Since January, 1913.

Some saloon keepers are not holding on with the idea of "getting it while the getting is good," judging by the fact that there are 25 fewer saloons in the city than there were two and a half months ago. A count today showed 1571, as compared with 1596 on March 14.

Examination of the excise records at the city hall discloses that the number of saloons in the city has been steadily decreasing since 1912. The number of licenses at saloons at dates on which they were counted follows: January, 1913, 2410; October, 1914, 2288; October, 1915, 2273; November, 1916, 2188; October, 1917, 2163; January, 1918, 2148. Thus the number of saloons has decreased by 839 in six years and four months.

COURT ORDER FORBIDS STORAGE IN WOMAN'S MAGAZINE BUILDING

Injunction Says Restrictions Limit Use of University City Structure to Publishing.

Judge Wurdeman in the Clayton Circuit Court issued an injunction today restraining the Orcutt Storage, Packing and Moving Co. from using the former Woman's Magazine Building in University City as a furniture storage house. This is the octagonal building on Delmar boulevard which formerly was the headquarters of E. G. Lewis.

The storage company leased the building from the Regent Mercantile Corporation in November, 1917. The petition for the injunction was filed in the name of Fred S. Charlott in April, 1918, and had been under advisement since the hearing Jan. 24 last.

In granting the injunction Judge Wurdeman said it did not appear that the present use of the building constituted a nuisance, but that unless the restriction was put on the use, it could not be used for any other business purpose than publishing if holders of surrounding property objected.

NEW METHOD KEEPS KINKS OUT OF WOOD BLOCK PAVING

Engineer in Charge of City Street Construction Says He Is Eliminating "Marcel Ware" Effect.

A way to keep the "marcel ware" out of wood block paving has been discovered, W. W. Horner, engineer in charge of street construction for the city, said today. It is to put the blocks on the sand under the blocks. The method has been tried out on Fifteenth street, between Olive and Washington, during the last week in the city. Under the heavy traffic, the sand shifted, and the "marcel ware" effect appeared.

By the new method, the concrete is coated with pitch, and the wood blocks are stuck in the pitch. Under heavy traffic, the sand shifted, and the "marcel ware" effect appeared. The block on McPherson avenue, between Walton and Euclid avenues, and that on Lucas avenue between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, has just been completed by this method.

WIRE AND RAIL RATE INCREASES UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

Railroad Administration and Postmaster-General Held to Have Had Power to Inaugurate Higher Charges.

DECREES IN ILLINOIS ARE DISSOLVED

Joint Resolution, Taking Over Lines, Gave Power to Interfere With Interstate Tolls, Decision Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Railroad freight and passenger rate increases made by the Railroad Administration last June were upheld today by the Supreme Court.

Increased telephone and telegraph rates put into effect last Jan. 21, under an order of Postmaster-General Burleson, were also upheld today by the Supreme Court. The Court held that under the joint resolution, by which the wire systems were taken over by the Government, there was authority for interfering with interstate rates.

South Dakota Decrees Set Aside.
The Court set aside South Dakota Supreme Court decrees enjoining the Dakota Central and three other telephone companies from increasing intrastate toll rates in compliance with the Postmaster-General's order.

Federal Court decrees permanently restraining the Postmaster-General from charging increased telegraph rates in Illinois were dissolved by the Court.

The opinion in all of the wire cases was unanimous. Massachusetts decrees dismissing the State Public Service Injunction were affirmed and original proceedings brought by Kansas were dismissed.

North Dakota Supreme Court decrees enjoining the Northern Pacific Railroad and Director-General Hines from enforcing an order of the Railroad Administration increasing rates in that State were reversed.

The court also set aside lower court decrees which held that under section 15 of the Railroad Control Act, re-existing intra-state rates remained in effect as lawful police regulations.

The court held that the authority conferred by the resolution and the act were powers conferred on the President and that the power of the Federal Government "was supreme and conclusive." The opinion was unanimous.

Orders Issued by McAdoo.

McAdoo and placed in effect in June, 1918, made an increase of 25 per cent in freight rates and a general increase in passenger fares to 25 per cent. The increase was authorized by receipt of intrastate business of the carriers, railroad administration officials said, represent between 35 and 40 per cent of the total operating income of the carriers.

The proceedings were originally instituted by North Dakota authorities, who contended the rates were illegal and made without the approval of the State Board of Railway Commissioners as required by the laws of that state and for that reason the Federal Government's action was an interference with state police powers.

State officials further contended that neither the joint resolution nor the railroad control act under which the Government took over control and operated the rail systems of the country authorized the President to initiate intrastate rates; that the rates were established upon a misconception of the powers delegated to the chief executive and that they were unreasonable.

A general denial of these contentions was made by the Government, which insisted that the acts under which the Government took over the operation of the roads were war measures and that section 19 of the railroad control act clearly gave the President power to initiate all rates.

State Court Decision.
By a three to two decision, the State Supreme Court held that au-

TREATY REDUCES AUSTRIA TO A SMALL STATE WITH ONLY 6,000,000 POPULATION

She Is Required to Recognize Independence of New Governments—Many Clauses Identical With German Terms.

By the Associated Press.

ST. GERMAIN, June 2.—Following is a summary of the conditions of peace as presented to the Austrian plenipotentiaries at St. Germain today. Those clauses which are not yet ready for presentation will be delivered as soon as possible. The Austrians in the meantime having the opportunity to begin work on the greater part of the treaty in an effort to facilitate a final decision.

The Austrian treaty follows exactly the same outline as the German and in many places is identical with it except for the change in name.

Certain specific clauses which applied only to Germany, are, of course, omitted and certain new clauses included, especially regarding the new states created out of the former Austro-Hungarian empire, and the protection of the rights of the racial, religious and linguistic minorities in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and the Serbian-Croatian-Slovenian state. Austria is left by the treaty a state of from 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 people inhabiting a territory of between 5000 and 6000 square miles. She is required to recognize the complete independence of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and the Serbian-Croatian-Slovenian state, and to cede other territories which previously in union with her, composed the empire of Austria-Hungary with its population of over 50,000,000 people.

League of Nations.
Austria agrees to accept the league of nations covenant and the labor charter, to renounce all her extra-European rights, to demilitarize her whole navy and to accept the right of trial by the allied and associated powers of her nationals guilty of violating the law and customs of force and to accept detailed provisions similar to those of the German treaty as to economic relations and freedom of transit.

In the following summary, part one of the treaty, containing the covenant of the league of nations and part 12, containing the labor convention, are omitted as being identical with corresponding sections of the German treaty. Part six, dealing with prisoners of war and graves, and part 11, with aerial navigation, are also identical except for the substitution of names, and are likewise omitted.

Part 13 of the German treaty, containing guarantees of execution is not paralleled in the Austrian treaty.

Preamble to Terms.
The preamble is longer, and more detailed than in the German summary and follows:

"Whereas, On the request of the former Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Government an armistice was granted to Austria-Hungary on Nov. 3, 1918, by the principal allied and associated powers in order that a treaty of peace might be concluded; and whereas, The Allied and Associated powers are equally desirous that the war in which certain among them were successively involved, directly or indirectly, against Austria, and which originated in the declaration of war against Serbia on July 28, 1914, by the former Imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian Government, and in the hostilities conducted by Germany in alliance with Austria-Hungary, should be replaced by a firm, just and durable peace, and

Whereas, the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy has now ceased to exist and has been replaced in Austria by a republican Government, and

Whereas, the principal allied and associated powers have already recognized that the Czechoslovak state, in which are incorporated certain portions of the said monarchy, is a free, independent and allied state, and

Whereas, the said powers have also recognized the union of certain portions of the said monarchy with the territory of the Kingdom of Serbia as a free, independent and allied state, under the name of the Serb-Croat-Slovene state, and

Whereas, it is necessary, while restoring peace, to regulate the situation which has arisen from the dissolution of the said monarchy and the formation of the said states, and to establish the government of these countries on

15 DAYS FOR REPLY GIVEN; ONLY PART OF TREATY READY

Premier Clemenceau Delivers

Address at Presentation of Document to the Delegates From Vienna Who Appear in Conventional Morning Dress.

CHANCELLOR RENNEN
SPEAKS IN FRENCH

Complains of Delay and Says New Republic Is Free From Hapsburgs and Never Would Have Declared War Itself.

By the Associated Press.

ST. GERMAIN, June 2.—Austria was today given 15 days to reply to the terms of peace presented by the allied nations.

The Austrian treaty follows exactly the same outline as the German treaty and in many places is identical with it except for the change in name.

The Austrian representatives arrived at 12:22 o'clock, entering the chamber by a rear entrance. The delegates were attired in conventional morning dress.

The Austrians were escorted in by an Italian officer.

Clemenceau Makes Address.
Immediately upon their arrival at 12:22 o'clock the session was formally opened by announcement of the head usher. President Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, then began his address.

Only the political and certain territorial and economic clauses of the treaty were communicated to the Austrians, the financial and military clauses being withheld for later presentation.

Paul Dutaute, general secretary of the peace conference, presented the terms to the Austrians at 12:37 o'clock.

Premier Clemenceau spoke in French, for three minutes. His remarks were translated into English, then into Italian and then into German.

The hall was densely packed, many of the secretaries having been admitted to the chamber and the denseness of the throng detracted somewhat from the impressiveness of the ceremony.

Chancellor Renner Speaks.
Dr. Karl Renner, Austrian Chancellor and head of the delegation, followed Premier Clemenceau in an address in French. He opened with a complaint at the delay in the presentation of the peace terms. The Chancellor declared the Austrian republic was entirely free from the Hapsburg dynasty. It would never have declared war itself, he asserted. The Chancellor concluded his address at 12:50 o'clock.

"Our state rests in your hands," said Dr. Renner in his speech, "and we hope before the conscience of the world that the allies will not abuse this power."

In addition to the conference representatives of the allied and associated powers there were present many distinguished persons, including Marshal Foch, Gen. Bliss, Admiral Benson and American Ambassador Wallace.

Dr. Renner's address was translated into English and Italian. Dr. Renner stood while reading his speech and his attitude, like that of the entire Austrian delegation, was extremely courteous, contrasting sharply with that of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and the Germans at Versailles. The conciliatory tones of Dr. Renner apparently created a good impression on the allied delegates.

The general atmosphere seemed quite friendly.

M. Clemenceau was the first prominent figure to arrive at the meeting.

Read Describes His Entire Atlantic Flight for Post-Dispatch

LONDON GIVES U. S. NAVAL AVIATORS ROUSING WELCOME

American Soldiers and Sailors Bear Read and Hawker on Their Shoulders in Parade at Railroad Station.

BRITISH SEA FLYER GREET'S NC-4 CREW

Sunday Afternoon Crowds in Streets and Parks Cheer Men Who Flew Across the Atlantic.

BY JOSEPH W. GRIGG, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, June 2.—Surrounded by a cheering mob of American soldiers and sailors in Paddington Station yesterday afternoon, two men grasped hands for a second and then were hoisted to the shoulders of the crowd. They were Lieutenant-Commander Read and Harry G. Hawker.

Hawker had come to congratulate Read on the latter's transatlantic flight. The next minute the spacious station rang with three cheers for Read, followed by three cheers for Hawker, then rounds of cheers for Towers and Bellinger.

Hawker's hearty greeting of Read struck the imagination of the American soldiers and sailors. Hoisted onto the shoulders of two husky American sailors he was carried full tilt into the crowd-lined street behind Read, who was undergoing a similar precarious shoulder ride.

Once in the street the two became the center of an impromptu snake dance before they were finally rushed back into the station to the relief of the Royal Aero Club's reception committee and the American naval and military headquarters representatives, who had provided cars for the party, gayly decorated with American flags, to continue the journey to the Aero Club, where an informal reception was held.

Parade Through Streets. Read was finally placed by the enthusiastic soldiers in a small automobile, which, along with the sailors, the soldiers at once proceeded to drag through the London streets, followed by the highly decorated cars and automobiles in which were Hawker and his wife.

The arrival of the heroes of the hour was a complete surprise, for it was not until late Saturday that it was decided when the crews of the American seaplanes would start for London. But the crowd which met Read was liberally sprinkled with Britishers and colonials and more joined in as the procession proceeded through the streets. Before it reached Hyde Park most of the decorated automobiles had turned into side streets, taking the shortest cut to the Aero Club, presumably because those in charge did not want to stage a formal procession through the London streets on Sunday.

Crowds Cheer Americans. But this was not the case with the soldier and sailor part of the procession, as they continued through the streets singing "Hail, hail, the gang's all here." The Royal Flying Corps, with enthusiasm of the Sunday crowds, and at the Marble Arch the immense throng in Hyde Park, hearing from the great commotion and seconded by the flying field to witness "stunt" flying. Tonight they dined as guests of the Royal Air Force.

Lieutenant-Commander Read and the other naval aviators, accompanied by Rear Admiral Plunkett and other naval officers, were met by a cheering crowd of Americans, who, while Mrs. Hawker clapped her hands with happiness when she saw her husband hoisted on the shoulders of the American sailors and acclaimed with "Good old Yanks."

Nothing pleased the American soldiers and sailors more than Hawker's appearance at the station, and he got cheers little short in volume of those accorded to Read, while Mrs. Hawker clapped her hands with happiness when she saw her husband hoisted on the shoulders of the American sailors and acclaimed with "Good old Yanks."

Lieutenant-Commander Read gave a description of the last leg of the flight and then said: "We have now finished our program, but I believe that the NC-4 with a little oiling up and a slight overhauling could make the journey back across the Atlantic."

The crews of the three American seaplanes were guests at a luncheon given by the American naval headquarters staff today. This function completed the entertainment program for the present.

Harry G. Hawker, who had wired his congratulations to the crew of the NC-4 at Plymouth, had arrived at the station half an hour before the train came in, as it was 20 minutes late. The huge crowd outside the station waiting to see the successful American flyers cheered him and Mrs. Hawker as they drove up in their car. When they were inside the station three cheers were suggested and led by an American officer and given him by the American fighting men. They then gave three cheers for Mrs. Hawker.

First Wife of John Jacob Astor Who Becomes Bride of Lord Ribblesdale

LADY RIBBLESDALE.

MRS. JOHN ASTOR WEDS BRITISH BARON

First Wife of Late New York Man Becomes Bride of Thomas Lister Ribblesdale.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, June 1.—In the column of paid marriage notices in the Times this morning is one saying that Mrs. John Astor was married to Lord Ribblesdale Saturday at St. Mary's Church, Bryanston Square, London.

The Daily Express, the only newspaper announcing the marriage in its news columns, identifies Mrs. Astor as the first wife of the late John Jacob Astor of New York.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor divorced John Jacob Astor, who was lost on the Titanic, some years ago. She is the mother of Vincent Astor, who returned from France, where he served during the war in the United States navy as an ensign, and Muriel Astor. Mrs. Astor has long been known as simply Mrs. John Astor, having dropped the "Jacob" from her name after Col. Astor's second marriage.

Thomas Lister Ribblesdale, fourth baron of that name, was born in 1854 and succeeded to his title in 1878. He owns a large estate and is a keen sportsman. He has no heir.

Ex-Governor Now Favors "Drys." Malcolm B. Patterson, who, during his term as Governor of Tennessee vetoed a bill of the Legislature voting Tennessee "dry," but whose veto was passed over by another vote of the Legislature, spoke last night in St. John's Methodist Church in favor of prohibition. He said that he once believed prohibition was fundamentally wrong, but now believed it to be fundamentally right.

Advocates of the plan contended that if one or two of the members of the crew were dropped, enabling the plane to carry a greatly increased supply of gasoline, there was an excellent chance of success. They argued that the destroyers could be stationed along the direct course to insure safety of the crew.

In addition to the tax question the directors will take up important legislative programs. One of these, it is expected, will be a pledge of support to three bills already introduced in Congress to protect automobile owners of one state from additional license imposition in other states. These bills are aimed at doing away with the interference to commercial traffic which have become burdensome at places like St. Louis and East St. Louis, Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island, Ill., Washington, D. C., and Virginia and Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the like.

The directors also will consider plans to eliminate motor car thefts. Officers and directors attending are: President, F. W. A. Vesper; first vice president, E. W. Steinhart of Indianapolis; second vice president, Seattle, Wash.; treasurer, Thomas J. Hay of Chicago; business manager, Harry G. Mook of St. Louis, and directors, E. A. Malby, Philadelphia; F. E. Chubb, Cincinnati; G. B. Kimball, Boston; A. E. Mitchell, St. Louis; George D. McCutcheon, Atlanta; W. J. Brice, Kansas City, Mo.; and P. H. Greer, San Francisco.

The meeting will continue tomorrow.

SIX INJURED YESTERDAY IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Motorists Run Down and Hurt Four Pedestrians at Street Corners and Police Make Arrests.

Four accidents in which pedestrians at street corners—"jay walking" in the middle of blocks—were injured by automobiles, and two collisions between automobiles and street cars, with injuries to the occupants of the automobiles, occurred yesterday.

George Gilmeth, 52 years old, of 2215 North Twentieth street, was struck by an automobile while he and his wife were waiting for a Cherokee car at Gravois and Gustine avenues at 10 p. m. He was taken to the city hospital, suffering from scalp wounds and injuries to the back. The car, said to have contained four men, speeded west, with no stop after the accident.

Philip Steibel, 50, of 3539 Tennessee avenue, was the most seriously injured in a group of four who were struck by a service car of the Ajax Tire Co. at Broadway and Washington avenue at 11:30 p. m. They were waiting for a street car, and the car, which was running north on Broadway, turned to avoid collision with an automobile coming west on Washington avenue, and the driver lost control of it. The car turned over before it struck Steibel's son and daughter and another young woman. Steibel's skull was fractured, and he was taken to the city hospital. The chauffeur, William Kansom, a negro, was arrested.

Leg Broken and Skull Cut. Rose Marie Butler, 9, of 3119 Park avenue, was run down at Grand and Park avenues at 7 p. m. by an automobile driven by Dr. Charles S. Thomas of 4643 Tower Grove place. One of her legs was broken, and a deep scalp wound was inflicted. Dr. Thomas was arrested and released on bond. He said the child ran in front of his car.

Miss Vera Meyer, 17, of 312 Dover street, was knocked down at Grand avenue and Arsenal street at 7 p. m. by an automobile driven by Miss Laura Mohan, 19, of 2819 Plad avenue. One of her legs was broken, and a deep scalp wound was inflicted. Dr. Thomas was arrested and released on bond. He said the child ran in front of his car.

Girl's Shoulder Fractured. Miss Virginia Ingram, 21, of 4000 East avenue, driving an automobile, was injured when the machine was wrecked by a Ford automobile at Marcus avenue at 8 p. m. One of her shoulders was fractured. The car was injured, and the driver, Walter Ingram, was cut and bruised.

An automobile driven by George Marquette, 18, of 5648 Eitel avenue, and containing several youths, ran into the rear of a Ford automobile near Angelica street and Harold Moran, 14, of 809 Drexel street, was injured, his hip being fractured. The youth said he was not in the automobile when it was wrecked, but was riding on the rear bumper of the street car. Marquette was arrested on charges of felonious wounding, and driving an automobile without a chauffeur's license.

Methods to be followed in obtaining the repeal of the 3 per cent federal tax on automobiles, parts and accessories, and the 3 per cent tax on trucks, were before the directors of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, in conference in St. Louis today. The association represents 27,000 dealers throughout the United States. F. W. A. Vesper of St. Louis is president and Harry G. Mook, formerly of Denver, is business manager. Headquarters are at 3124A Locust street.

In addition to the tax question the directors will take up important legislative programs. One of these, it is expected, will be a pledge of support to three bills already introduced in Congress to protect automobile owners of one state from additional license imposition in other states. These bills are aimed at doing away with the interference to commercial traffic which have become burdensome at places like St. Louis and East St. Louis, Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island, Ill., Washington, D. C., and Virginia and Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the like.

The directors also will consider plans to eliminate motor car thefts. Officers and directors attending are: President, F. W. A. Vesper; first vice president, E. W. Steinhart of Indianapolis; second vice president, Seattle, Wash.; treasurer, Thomas J. Hay of Chicago; business manager, Harry G. Mook of St. Louis, and directors, E. A. Malby, Philadelphia; F. E. Chubb, Cincinnati; G. B. Kimball, Boston; A. E. Mitchell, St. Louis; George D. McCutcheon, Atlanta; W. J. Brice, Kansas City, Mo.; and P. H. Greer, San Francisco.

The meeting will continue tomorrow.

NC-4 COMMANDER TELLS HOW SEAPLANE GOT THROUGH 12 MILES OF THICK FOG

One "Good Old Engine" Worked Splendidly All the Way—Details of the Cruise to Plymouth.

The Post-Dispatch publishes, exclusively today, Lieutenant Commander Read's own detailed account of his flight from Lisbon, Portugal, to Portsmouth, England, the last leg of his transatlantic journey on the NC-4, and his story of the earlier stages of his air journey, covering the flight from Rockaway Point to Ponta Delgada. This completes the Lieutenant Commander's graphic account of his achievement, which won for America the honors of the first crossing of the Atlantic in the air. His story of his flight from Ponta Delgada to Lisbon was published in the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

PLYMOUTH, June 2. THE NC-4 left Lisbon, Portugal, at 5:29 in the morning of May 30, after the personnel had received decorations from the Portuguese Government and many other honors. The Portuguese were very enthusiastic about the flight, and it became necessary to cancel official engagements for the following day.

The weather was favorable except for small rain squalls. We skirted the coast, flying about 10 miles off, and everything went along normally until 7:05, when we discovered a water leak in the port engine, and it became necessary to land to make repairs.

We headed for the shore to find smooth water. We found it in the Mondego River and landed at 7:21. We found the river full of sandbars and ran around but got off with no damage. We secured the plane to the bank of the river and investigated to find the depth of the water and to find room in which to make our getaway. The captain of the port very cordially assisted us by furnishing boats and otherwise. He took us to lunch, and the president of the town offered to give us the whole town or any part of it.

We found it necessary to wait for high tide to get a sufficient depth of water for the getaway. Two destroyers arrived and arranged the details of the remainder of the trip. We decided to stop at the harbor of Ferrol, Spain, as it was clearly impracticable to make Plymouth before dark.

On Way to Plymouth. The repairs being completed, we left at 1:38 in the afternoon with a slight, favorable wind and fine weather except for more squalls, which made it necessary to dodge occasionally. We kept near the shore, and the scenery more enjoyable. Our plane was in excellent condition, the leak having been entirely stopped. Our radio apparatus was functioning finely as usual, and we intercepted many air conversations.

Off Cape Finisterre we encountered a strong favorable wind and were able to beat our estimated time. At Ferrol, where we stopped two hours previously, by 15 minutes. Ferrol is surrounded by high hills and the air was clear.

Many Difficulties Encountered on the Way from Rockaway to Azores

Following is the detailed account of the flight of the NC-4 from Rockaway Point to Ponta Delgada, as written for the Post-Dispatch by Lieutenant-Commander Read on his arrival at Lisbon:

LISSON, via London, June 2. The trouble I used an observation which indicated that the shore was 20 miles farther out than I had figured by my reckoning, or 80 miles from the nearest shore. We started to taxi, hoping to pick up a destroyer, and then, that, to continue on to Cape Cod. At 11:20, two hours and a half after commencing our long, tiresome journey, a destroyer was sighted to the north, and we headed that way, but the destroyer was looking for us in another direction and soon drew away.

It was a beautiful night with the moon nearly full and the sea had smoothed down, so that, after the first hour or two, we made good about 10 knots. We were not much worried, for, if the engines held out, we were bound to make shore, and they did hold out all through the night.

One "Good Old Engine." We sighted our first lighthouse on Cape Cod at 5:25, then another one, and, just as it grew fairly light, we arrived off the naval air station at Chatham. The seaplanes from that station were just starting out to look for us. Just as we arrived at the channel entrance to wait for them, the oil pressure in one of the engines that had been running all night, dropped down, but we did not care. That good old engine had done its work. That same engine took us later all the way to Halifax and Trepassay and then to the Azores and Europe.

On the afternoon of the second day, May 10, the NC-4 was ready once more. Unfortunately, however, a 40-mile fuel set in, blowing directly from the north, sailing at Chatham and kept on blowing. It did not stop until the afternoon of the 13th. During this tedious wait we were encouraged, from time to time by dispatches stating that the weather conditions on the Newfoundland-Azores leg were unfavorable. That meant that the hills and, while the harbor is very beautiful, the air is very troublesome. We circled over thousands of the townspeople who had flooded to the docks and sea wall. We landed and picked up a buoy while we waited for a destroyer. The personnel was bunked on the destroyer for the night. No repairs to the seaplane were necessary. The Spanish officials were very polite, making calls of courtesy and offering us every assistance. The weather forecast for the next morning was favorable, but we had decided to proceed anyhow.

We left at 6:27 on the morning of May 31, and, after clearing the harbor, encountered rain for 40 minutes, the thick weather requiring frequent changes in the course and preventing us from seeing four of the six destroyers stationed along our course. The water gave careful attention to the French coast bandy, so there was no occasion over not sighting the destroyers. Good View of Brest. We edged to the right of the coast in order to be sure not to get into the harbor. We sighted the point south of Brest and turned off to get a look at Brest, never having seen that place. Then we circled and continued on for Plymouth. The country we saw was very picturesque. Outside of the harbor was very thick. We came down to a few feet above the water for better visibility. At 1:38 in the afternoon we ran into an increasing headwind and a thick haze, which cleared slightly when we reached mid-channel. We hit Plymouth square after a run of 112 miles. British seaplanes were aloft to meet us, and we climbed to an altitude of 1500 feet to pick out a landing place and landed at 1:26 G. M. T., or 2:26 local time. The wind, at 3:45 G. M. T., was from the off-shore, making a trying climax to the entire trip. The heartiness of the congratulations showered upon us proved the sportsmanship of the British. The crew of the NC-4 was in better health than at the time of the start from Rockaway Point, and the present good condition of the seaplane proved the excellent serviceability of that type of flying craft. Our Liberty motors had given a marvelous performance.

NC-1 and the NC-3, which made quick trips to Halifax and then on to Trepassay, would not leave immediately. We would not have blamed them if they had, for ideal weather conditions for the long stretch between Newfoundland and the Azores were so unusual.

On the 13th, with good weather promised, a daylight start was planned for the 14th. Then the starter on one of the motors broke in testing out. There were no spares of this part at Chatham. The Rockaway air station was called on the phone, and within three-quarters of an hour had a seaplane headed for Montauk with two starters.

Due to minor troubles developing, we did not finally get started until 8:14 a. m. (New York time) or 12:14 G. M. T., but we left with a good, strong wind in our favor. We picked up each of the three destroyers in turn that were stationed between Chatham and Nova Scotia and finally hit Seal Island, then skirted the coast and arrived at Halifax after a run of three hours and 54 minutes from Chatham Bar, at an average speed of 38 knots. The first leg of the journey was at last accomplished.

They told us the cheering news that the NC-1 and the NC-3 were still at Newfoundland. Now, for a quick run to Trepassay Bay, and perhaps we will catch them yet. On this run the radio officer was having a fine time listening to messages from all over and sending corrections to the shore. Before making Seal Island a message of inquiry had been received from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. I replied immediately. A few minutes later we received word that it was exactly three minutes from the time of Secretary Roosevelt's sending the message in Washington to the time of receiving my reply, which constituted a world's record.

Once More a Landing. At Halifax the weather still held good, and we planned a start early the next morning for Trepassay. The plane was given careful attention. The power plant needed it. The motor installed at Chatham had vibrated considerably. The right motor had been missing on three cylinders most of the way and the left motor was none too good. However, if we took time to change motors, we were afraid that word would come that the other planes were leaving for the Azores. We therefore did what could be done in the short time available, refueled, recoiled and set out the next morning.

Things went well for a few minutes and then the oil pressure on that same motor forward engine started to fall. We headed for smoother water near the shore and landed 18 miles from Halifax to investigate. The oil trouble was not of 112 miles. A defective spark plug was found and renewed and the carburetor jets were cleaned.

The wind, at 3:45 G. M. T., was from the off-shore, making a trying climax to the entire trip. The heartiness of the congratulations showered upon us proved the sportsmanship of the British. The crew of the NC-4 was in better health than at the time of the start from Rockaway Point, and the present good condition of the seaplane proved the excellent serviceability of that type of flying craft. Our Liberty motors had given a marvelous performance.

After passing St. Pierre, with the wind directly under the tail of the plane, we fairly burned the air to Trepassay. It grew colder and several icebergs were sighted. I was wearing two suits of heavy flannels, a shirt jersey, the regulation aviation uniform, and over all a heavily lined leather flying suit, and I had fleece-lined shoes over my others. It was none too much, for icebergs were forming on the struts of the plane.

However, it does not take long to round the point we were making and head up into Trepassay Bay. As we were approaching the landing, we made out the NC-1 and the NC-3 on the water taxiing into the harbor. We were saved by a hair from being left behind, we found out afterward, for the other planes had refused to lift.

Congratulations were showered on us and we were most joyful to be with the crowd, and have a chance to go along. Rapid work was done on the NC-4, and good work, too, as was evidenced by the wonderful run to Horta. A fine new motor replaced the center forward one that had given us so much anxiety. The whole oil and gasoline system was carefully cleaned, three new propellers were put on and we were ready just in time to make the big hop with the others.

Starting on the next leg, the longest of all—1350 nautical miles to Ponta Delgada, with a subletting station at Horta, 1200 miles away—the fact that we had a new and untired motor, just installed, gave us some uneasiness.

The start was delayed somewhat by trouble in getting that motor going, but finally all three planes were taxiing around the sheltered waters of Trepassay Bay, allowing the motors and the complicated system of piping to warm up. This was on the afternoon of May 15, the day after the arrival at Trepassay of the NC-4.

Then the NC-3 started out, and the NC-3 immediately shot on full power. We soon saw that the NC-3 had given up the attempt to get off, but by that time the NC-4 was planning on, evidently ready to take the case and it struck me as a fine opportunity to give our new motor and, in fact, our entire plant a preliminary tryout, during the time necessary for the NC-3 to return for another attempt. There, I got the pilots the signal to keep going and in a few more seconds we were bouncing along on the nearly spent waves entering the harbor. Then with a final easy leap we stayed in the air. To the great delight of the whole crew everything functioned perfectly and the new motor ran smooth and sweet, and delivered its full quota of power.

We flew for 18 minutes over Trepassay and the upper bay, and then as the NC-3 appeared to be waiting for something we again landed and once more stood by for the start. We had a new feeling of confidence now in our plane, and the chance of having to land soon after starting, as had been done outside of Halifax, seemed quite unlikely. Landing outside here would have been most unpleasant, as the 30-mile wind had kicked up a fairly rough sea and a forced landing in that water did not mean simply effecting minor repairs and another getaway, but the probable abandonment of the whole project.

At last the NC-3 made a second attempt to get off, this time successfully. The NC-4 followed and at 10:05 G. M. T. we took the air. This time the NC-3 was standing by ready to extend a helping hand.

After passing St. Pierre, with the wind directly under the tail of the plane, we fairly burned the air to Trepassay. It grew colder and several icebergs were sighted. I

"Chairman National Committee."

"National Committeeman," Goltra had escorted Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the National Committee; Mrs. George Bass, chairman of the Democratic Women's National Committee Auxiliary; and others, through the State, arriving here yesterday.

The party was met here last night by S. B. Amidon, Democratic National Committeeman from Kansas and vice-chairman of the National Committee, who will escort the members through Kansas.

Speaking of the meeting at St. Louis, Goltra said:
"The visit of Chairman Cummings to Missouri undoubtedly has had the effect of solidifying all elements of Democracy within the State."

REDDISH OFFERS TO PAY A GIRL TO TALK TO HIM

Prisoner, Lonesome, Says He Wants Visitor to Sit in Corridor
and "Tell Him the Gossip."

Dr. Horace Augustus Reddish, Jerseyville physician charged with the murder of his wealthy father, is so lonesome that he recently offered to pay a young woman $15 a week to visit him once a day to talk to him. The circumstances of the offer were related today by Charles Miller, owner of a bakery.

Dr. Reddish's 6-year-old son Hubert is permitted to visit his father at will. One day last week Dr. Reddish sent a note by Hubert to Miller, asking the latter to visit him, which he accordingly did. Dr. Reddish asked Miller to see the sister of a young woman employed by Miller, and to say to her that he would pay her $15 a week to visit him during his imprisonment, which will last until September, at least.

He only desired that she sit in the corridor outside his cell, tell him current gossip, and listen to what he had to say, Miller said.
Only a Speaking Acquaintance.
Miller said that Dr. Reddish had seen the young woman in the bakery a number of times prior to his arrest, and had talked to her, but she and Miller declared that she never had any but a speaking acquaintance with Dr. Reddish, whose wife has been separated from him for more than two years.

Dr. Reddish had previously asked the jailer's wife to call up a number of Jerseyville young women, and ask them to visit him at the jail.

The authorities vetoed all these arrangements. It was said that Dr. Reddish had been allowed more comforts than are usually accorded prisoners, and that he would not be indulged any further.

Morphine Denied to Him.
He has been denied morphine, to which he is addicted, for more than a week. During the last few days he has developed a number of "hallucinations," which a physician who examined him said were imaginary. Dr. Reddish himself has prescribed morphine as the cure for all of them. He has not been allowed to fill that prescription.

No date for the preliminary hearing has been set. Attorneys for Reddish said last week they believed it would be held this week, but said today it probably would not be until later.

JUSTICE

For the Foster-Parents of Our Children

IT IS STRANGE that the generous-hearted American people, who poured out their riches so prodigally in response to every patriotic, every charitable appeal, and who accorded such enthusiastic and liberal support to every measure and to every group that helped win the war, should have neglected to properly encourage and reward the services of one of the noblest professions in the field of human activities—a profession that in lofty ideals, in unselfish principles, in sacred responsibilities, stands side by side with the ministry of the Gospel itself.

We wish to bespeak, with whatever power and authority we may have and with such words as may be granted to us, some measure of consideration for the foster-fathers and mothers of our children—the school teachers of the United States of America.

There is no class of workers of whom we demand so much. We commit into their keeping the minds, the bodies, and the very souls of our children in the tender and formative years of their lives, and they, receiving these children, can indeed be said to hold in the hollow of their hands the future of America. We expect these devoted men and women to watch over and care for our sons and daughters as though they were their very own, to drill them in the arts and sciences, to train them for business and for citizenship, to instruct them in manners and in morals, to do for them those things which we would do had we the training and the leisure.

No class has assumed so heavy, so trying a burden and a responsibility with such willingness as these consecrated men and women. No class has performed its increasingly heavy tasks more devotedly, more conscientiously, and with less thought of self. No class served its country more whole-heartedly, more loyally, during the trying and tempestuous times of war, day by day pursuing its round of duty, day by day helping the young people, and through the children the parents, to see the struggle in its true light, thus securing the co-operation of the community in every measure undertaken by the Government to win the war.

Truly they have made the nation their everlasting debtor. Truly had they not done their work so well this republic would not outlast the span of a generation.

What then have the teachers received at our hands in return? They have received little of honor and somewhat less of pay. Other classes have prospered; other classes through powerful organizations have secured generous wages. The teachers have no spokesman, however, to demand even the simple justice of a living wage, so to them we give their petty pre-war pittance, so meager, so pitifully inadequate, that it places a burning brand of shame and disgrace upon this nation.

The men and women who are making the Americans of tomorrow are being treated with less consideration than the janitors who sweep out the buildings in which they are employed; they are earning, on the average, less than the wages given to the scrubwomen employed in the public buildings of the United States Government. Normal-school graduates receive less salary than street-sweepers; high-school principals and superintendents less than section foremen; country school teachers less for instructing the farmer's children than he pays his hired men to feed his hogs.

In a certain town of Illinois, for instance, the average wage of fifteen miners for one month was $217, while the average monthly salary of fifteen teachers in the same town was $55. In another town a miner, who, by the way, was an enemy alien, drew more than $2700 last year, while the salary of the high-school principal in the same town was $765. We welcome with all our hearts the long-belated recognition that is being given to the man who works with his hands. We believe that this same workingman will be the first to join with us in asking better pay for those who teach his children.

No wonder there are fifty thousand vacancies in the teaching forces of the schools. No wonder the ranks are being filled with weak men and with immature women who merely use the profession as a stepping-stone to something better. No wonder there are thirty thousand teachers in the United States who have had no schooling beyond the eighth grammar grade. Small wonder, indeed, that seven millions of our school children are being trained by teachers, mere boys and girls themselves, who have had no professional education whatever.

When we consider that the 740,000 teachers of America are paid an average salary of $630 a year; when, moreover, we consider the fact that living costs have actually advanced 103 per cent. since the beginning of the war, thereby cutting the buying-power of those insignificant salaries in half, we can easily determine that only a fool or a martyr would choose teaching as a profession, or would long remain in it unless these terrible conditions were swiftly remedied.

What a crime is this! What an indictment! What an unpardonable sin at the doors of an enlightened people who now find themselves at the head and forefront of the democracies of the world! How can we better prepare for the great undertakings of reconstruction than by setting ourselves immediately to remedying this perilous condition? In these trying and chaotic times when the world is beset by unrest, by anarchy, by revolution, by the devil's brood of appalling evils that follow in the train of war, we must make sure that the foundations of our republic are set on a rock that it may stand against the flood.

The peace and security of the world of the future will be in the safekeeping of the generation now in our schools. These boys and girls must weave up "the raveled sleeve" of civilization. Their hands must minister to the wounds of the nations. Their minds must meet and solve the difficult and crucial problems that will be their inheritance. Their hearts must be so imbued with the horrors of war and with the poverty and anguish that inevitably follow in its wake that they in their time will enter upon it only as a last resort in national self-defense or in support of some great principle of humanity.

Never has there been a more urgent need for high-minded, great-hearted, splendidly trained, 100 per cent. American instructors to drive home the vital lessons that these times hold. Never has the future of the nation been so clearly committed into the hands of the teachers. And yet thousands of men and women of ability who would prefer to teach are reluctantly leaving their chosen calling, forced by the hard necessities of their very existence.

The teachers ask no largess at the hands of fortune. They enter their profession for service, not riches. But they invest years and money in preparation for their life work, and the knowledge they gain is shared with others who themselves use it to their own profit. Teachers, then, by every right and in all justice expect a return that will permit them and their dependents to live decently and in comfort.

In every community reached by THE LITERARY DIGEST there are readers of foresight, of vision, broad-minded men and thoughtful women who will see—nay, perhaps have long since seen—the critical and compelling importance of this problem. We are directing this appeal to them. We urge them to compare the salaries of their teachers with the wages of those who are doing work of equal value. There will be a challenge in the facts that will stir the community to action.

Let each community invest in schools so that it may thereby invest in a trained manhood and womanhood that can play their part in the great period of rebuilding and reconstruction that lies before us. Let each community set for its goal, as far as is practicable, a minimum wage of at least $1000 a year for the teachers of America. This would cost the nation perhaps as much as we spent so gloriously in but one week of the Great War.

We are not pleading merely for the welfare of some single profession; we are not pleading for a special class; we are pleading for America; for her larger, her brighter, her richer future, for the fulfillment of her glorious promise. We are pleading for a coming race of men and women who shall be qualified to make complete the work of our forefathers who founded this nation and dedicated it to liberty, and who will bring to full fruition the new victories that we have won in freedom's cause. We are pleading for a wider teaching of the principles, the purposes, and the ideals of this nation that all men shall know her meaning and shall have equal access to her opportunities;

that the light of Americanism shall so shine that it shall flood every home, every heart, in our great land

Since This Appeal Was Printed in the New York Papers, May 5th

Governor Smith has signed the Bill generously increasing the pay of the school teachers of New York State and in doing so wrote: "Neglect the schoolhouses and you provide a fertile field for the spread of the doctrines of the discontented, who, without a proper understanding of the benefits and blessings of our free country, cry out from the street corners of our important cities for the downfall of our state and the dissolution of our union."

TEXT OF RANTZAU'S NOTE ON GERMAN OBSERVATIONS OF PEACE TREATY DRAFT

Document Given Out at Washington Discloses
Counter Proposals of Teuton Commissioners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Germany, although realizing that she must make sacrifices to obtain peace, is convinced that the execution of the peace treaty as drawn is "more than the German people can bear." Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, thus sums up the attitude of the German nation towards the proposed treaty of peace in a note to the allied and associated Powers outlining various German counter proposals. The German note, delivered to Premier Clemenceau last Thursday, was made public last night by the State Department.

The German delegation nowhere in its note asserts that it will refuse to sign the present treaty, but declares on behalf of the German nation that "even in her need, justice for her is too sacred a thing to allow her to achieve conditions which she cannot undertake to carry out."

Regards it as "death sentence." Exclusion of Germany from the league of nations, the note asserts, means that in signing the peace treaty Germany would be executing a "decree for its own proscription, nay, its own death sentence."

The German people, the note says, have been disappointed in their "hope for a peace of justice which had been promised," and stand "aghast" at the demands made upon them by the "victorious violence of our enemies."

Outlining its counter proposals, the German delegation agrees to reduction of Germany's army and navy

One Woman to Another By Marjorie Brett

Elmer Carstairs tapped her foot impatiently and glanced at her wrist watch in annoyance. Her appointment with Grace was at 2 o'clock, and it was already 2:15.

At about 20 minutes after 2 Grace rushed up and kissed her affectionately.

"My dear!" she exclaimed. "I'm so sorry, but at the last minute I found that I was all out of Amolin, and I had to send out and get some."

"What in the world is Amolin?" asked Marjorie, her annoyance at Grace's lateness forgotten in her curiosity.

"Why," said Grace hesitatingly, "so long ago mother told me that I didn't seem as wholesome and fresh personally as I ought to be."

"I know just how it is," said Elmer, sympathetically. "Keeping sweet and wholesome is no easy matter. However, what has all this to do with Amolin?"

"Well," continued Grace, "Amolin is a perfectly wonderful deodorant that positively destroys all odors from perspiration or other causes. I use it after my bath, sprinkle it in my clothes, and, in fact, use it in all sorts of personal ways."

Amolin is the personal deodorant powder. It is antiseptic, unscented, contains no perfume, and is soothing and healing. Amolin is excellent, too, for healing and preventing chafing. It can be bought at any drug or department store for 25c a can, or 45c for a double size tin. Write The Amolin Company, Ltd., N. J., for a free sample.—ADV.

Even in internal affairs we are on condition that Germany be admitted immediately to the league of nations; to renounce Germany's sovereign rights in Alsace-Lorraine and Posen, but as to all other territories which Germany is called upon to give up the principle of self-determination, applicable at once, is asked; to subject all German colonies to administration by the league of nations, but under German management, and to make the indemnity payments as required, but in amounts that will burden the German taxpayer no more heavily than the taxpayer of the most heavily burdened among those represented on the reparations commission.

The note declares Germany is willing to pool her entire merchant marine with that of the associated Powers. Neutral participation in the inquiry as to responsibility for the war is asked.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The text of the German note dated May 29 and addressed to Premier Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, has been made public by the State Department as follows:

"Mr. President:

"I have the honor to transmit to you herewith the observations of the German delegation on the draft treaty of peace. We came to Versailles in the expectation of receiving a peace proposal based on the agreed principles. We were firm resolved to do everything in our power with a view of fulfilling the grave obligations which we had undertaken. We hoped for the peace of justice which had been promised to us. We were aghast when we read in documents the demands made upon us."

The more deeply we penetrate into the spirit of this treaty, the more convinced we become of the impossibility of carrying it out. The executions of this treaty are more than the German people can bear.

The Polish Situation.

"With a view to the re-establishment of the Polish state we must renounce indisputably German territory, nearly the whole of the province of West Prussia, which is preponderantly German, of Pomerania, Danzig, which is German to the core, we must let that ancient Hanseatic town be transformed into a free state under a Polish suzerainty. We must agree that East Prussia shall be amputated from the body of the state, condemned to a lingering death and robbed of its northern portion, including Memel, which is purely German. We must renounce upper Silesia for the benefit of Poland and Czechoslovakia, although it has been in close political connection with Germany for more than 750 years, is instinct with German life and forms the very foundation of industrial life throughout East Germany."

"Preponderantly German circles (Kreise) must be ceded to Belgium without sufficient guarantees that the plebiscite, which is only to take place afterwards, will be independent. The purely German district of the Saar must be detached from our empire and the way must be paved for its subsequent annexation to France, although we owe her debts in coal only, not in men."

"For 15 years, Rhenish territory must be occupied and after those 15 years the allies have the power to refuse the restoration of the country; in the interval the allies can take every measure to sever the economic and moral links with the mother country and finally to misrepresent the wishes of the indigenous population."

The Costs of War.

"Although the exaction of the cost of war has been expressly renounced, as yet Germany, thus in pieces and weakened, must declare herself ready in principle to bear all the war expenses of her enemies which would exceed many times over the total amount of German state and private assets. Meanwhile her enemies demand, in excess of the agreed conditions, reparation for damage suffered by their civil population, and in this connection Germany must also go bail for her allies. The sum to be paid is to be fixed by our enemies unilaterally and to admit of subsequent modifications and increase. No limit is fixed save the capacity of the German people for payment, determined not by their standard of life, but solely by their capacity to meet the demands of their enemies by their labor. The German people would thus be condemned to perpetual slave labor."

"In spite of the exorbitant demands, the reconstruction of our economic life is rendered impossible. We must surrender our merchant fleet. We are to renounce all foreign securities. We are to hand over to our enemies our property in all German enterprises abroad, even in the countries of our allies. Even after the conclusion of peace the enemy states are to have the right of confiscating all German property. No German trader in their countries will be protected from these war measures. We must completely renounce our colonies and not even German missionaries shall have the right to follow their calling therein. We must thus renounce the realization of all our aims in the spheres of politics, economics and ideas."

"Even in internal affairs we are to give up the right to self-determination. The international reparations commission receives dictatorial powers over the whole life of our people in economic and cultural matters. Its authority extends far beyond that which the empire, the German Federal Council and the Reichstag combined every possession within the territory of the empire. This commission has unlimited control over the economic life of the state, of communities and of individuals. Further, the entire educational and sanitary system depends on it. It can keep the whole German people in mental thralldom. In order to increase the payments due by the thralldom, the commission can hamper measures for the social protection of the German worker."

In other words, also, Germany's sovereignty is abolished. Her chief waterways are subjected to international administration. She must construct in her territories such canals and such rivers as the enemies wish; she must agree to treaties, the contents of which are unknown to her, to be concluded by her enemies with the new states on the east, even when they concern her own functions. The German people is excluded from the league of nations, to which is entrusted all work of common interest to the world.

"Thus must a whole people sign the decree for its own proscription, nay, its own death sentence."

"Germany knows that she must make sacrifices in order to attain peace. Germany knows that she has, by agreement, undertaken to make these sacrifices and will go in this matter to the utmost limits of her capacity."

German Proposals.

1. Germany offers to proceed with her own disarmament in advance of all other peoples, in order to show that she will help to usher in the new era of the peace of justice. She gives up universal compulsory service and reduces her army to 100,000 men, except as regards temporary measures. She even renounces the war ships which her enemies are still willing to accept in her hands. She stipulates, however, that she shall be admitted forthwith as a State with equal rights into the league of nations. She stipulates that a genuine league of nations shall come into being, embracing all peoples of good will, even her enemies of today. The league must be inspired by a feeling of responsibility towards mankind and have at its disposal a power to enforce its will sufficiently strong and trusty to protect the frontiers of its members."

"2. Interterritorial questions: Germany takes up her position unreservedly on the ground of the Wilson program. She renounces her sovereign right in Alsace-Lorraine, but wishes a free plebiscite to take place there. She gives up the greater part of the province of Posen, the district incontestably Polish in Posen, together with the Capital. She is prepared to grant to Poland, under international guarantees, free and secure access to the sea by ceding free ports at Danzig, Königsberg and Memel, by an agreement regulating the navigation of the Vistula, and by specifying railway conditions."

"Germany is prepared to ensure the supply of coal for the economic needs of France, especially from the Saar region, until such time as the French mines are once more in working order. The preponderantly Danish districts of Schleswig will be given up to Denmark on the basis of a plebiscite. Germany demands that the right of self-determination shall also be repeated where the interests of the Germans in Austria and Bohemia are concerned."

"She is ready to subject all her colonies to administration by the community of the league of nations if she is recognized as its mandatory."

The Matter of Payments.

"3. Germany is prepared to make payments incumbent on her in accordance with the agreed program of peace up to the maximum sum of 400,000,000,000 of gold marks. 20,000,000,000 by May 1, 1925, and the balance (80,000,000,000) in annual payments without interest."

"These payments shall in principle be equal to a fixed percentage of the German imperial and state revenues. The annual payments shall approximate to the former peace budget. For the first 10 years the annual payments shall not exceed 1,000,000,000 of gold marks a year. The German taxpayer shall not be less heavily burdened than the taxpayer of the most heavily burdened state among those represented on the Reparation Commission."

"Germany presumes in this connection that she will not have to make any territorial sacrifices beyond those mentioned above, and that she will recover her freedom on economic movement at home and abroad."

"4. Germany is prepared to devote her entire economic strength to the service of reconstruction. She wishes to co-operate effectively in the reconstruction of the devastated regions of Belgium and Northern France. To make good the loss in production of the destroyed mines in Northern France, up to 20,000,000 tons of coal will be delivered annually for the first five years and up to 8,000,000 tons for the next five years. Germany will facilitate further deliveries of coal to France, Belgium, Italy and Luxembourg."

"Germany is, moreover, prepared to make considerable deliveries of benzol, coal tar and sulphate of ammonia as well as dyestuffs and medicines."

How I Work Magic With Left-Over Cheese

Jim loves cheese anyway, but if course he doesn't like it just plain, and it used to be terribly hard for me to think up new ways of preparing it for him, but since I've learned the secret, it's so easy—and such fun to watch him consume perfectly ordinary dishes as though they were the creations of a million-dollar chef.

For instance, the other day for Sunday night supper I made a cheese omelette that was delicious. I just made an ordinary omelette, and after seasoning it with salt and pepper, added half a cup of left-over cheese, grated. There are two secrets in the making of a light, fluffy cheese omelette, I've found. One is to put in the beaten yolks and beaten whites of the eggs separately, and the other is not to forget the flavoring—plenty of the relish with the French dressing. It makes all the difference in the world. Try it and see for your Jim.—ADV.

NOTE PROTESTING AGAINST PEACE TERMS

put her entire merchant tonnage into a pool of the world's shipping, to place at the disposal of her ene- mies a part of her freight space as part payment of reparation, and to build for them for a series of years, in German yards, an amount of tonnage exceeding their de- mands.

"6. In order to replace the river boats destroyed in Belgium and Northern France, Germany offers river craft from her own re- sources.

"7. Germany thinks she sees an appropriate method for the prompt fulfillment of her obligations to make reparations conceding partic- ipation in industrial enterprises, especially in coal mines, to insure deliveries of coal.

"8. Germany, in accordance with the desires of the workers of the whole world, wishes to see the workers in all countries free and enjoying equal rights. She wishes to insure to them in the treaty of peace the right to take their own decisive part in the settlement of social policy and social protection.

"9. The German delegation again makes its demands for a neutral entry into the responsibility for the war and culpable acts in con- duct. An impartial commission should have the right to investi- gate on its own responsibility the archives of all the belligerent countries and all the persons who took an important part in the war.

"Nothing short of confidence that the question of guilt will be examined dispassionately can place the peoples happily at war with each other in proper frame of mind for the formation of the league of na- tions.

"These are only the most im- portant among the proposals which we have to make. As regards other great sacrifices, and also as regards the details, the delegation refers to the accompanying memo- randum and the annex thereto.

"Time Was Too Short."
"The time allowed us for the preparation of this memorandum was so short that it was impossible to treat all the questions exhaus- tively. A fruitful and illuminat- ing negotiation could only take place by means of oral discussion. This treaty of peace is to be the greatest achievement of its kind in all history. There is no pre- cedent for the conduct of such com- prehensive negotiations by an ex- change of written notes only. The feeling of the peoples who have made such immense sacrifices makes them demand that their fate should be decided by an open, unreserved exchange of ideas on the principle: Open covenants of peace openly arrived at—after which there shall be no private international understanding of any kind, but diplomacy shall proceed always frankly in the public view.

"Germany is to put her signa- ture to the treaty laid before her and to carry it out. Even in her need, justice for her is too sacred a thing to allow her to stoop to achieve conditions which she can- not undertake to carry out.

"Treaties of peace signed by the great Powers have, it is true, in the history of the last decade, proclaimed the right of the stronger. But each of these treaties of peace has been a factor in originating and prolonging the world war. Whenever in this war the victor has spoken to the vanquished, at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, his words were but the seeds of fu- ture discord. The lofty aims which our adversaries first set before themselves in their conduct of the war demand a treaty instinct with a different spirit. Only the co-operation of all nations can build up a durable peace. We are under no delusions regarding the strength of the hatred and bitter- ness which this war has engen- dered, and yet the forces which are at work for a union of man- kind are stronger now than ever they were before. The historic task of the peace conference of Versailles is to bring about this union.

"Accept, Mr. President, the ex- pression of my distinguished con- sideration.

SALOONKEEPER ARRESTED WHEN ALLEGED PORTER MAKES CHARGE

Louis Klepper Shoved Money Back As He Saw Police at Window, Customer Says.
Policemen peering into the saloon of Louis Klepper, 2167 South Broad- way, at 1 p. m. yesterday, reported they saw Klepper hand a bottle of beer to John Schultz, 2821 Minnesota avenue, who was in front of the bar. They entered and arrested Klepper. "That's my porter," remarked Klepper. "I was just giving him a drink before we start to clean up the place."

"I'm no porter," exclaimed Schultz. "I came in here to get a bottle of beer and he shoved my money back when he saw someone at the window."

At a saloon and grocery at 2248 Madison street, police arrested Pat- rick Moran, 40 years old, a clerk for his brother, who is alleged to have sold a bottle of beer to John P. Kelly, probationary patrolman en- gaged in investigation for the gam- bling squad.

CONGRESSMAN ANTHONY'S CONCLUSIONS ON HANDLING OF 35TH DIVISION IN BATTLE

Relieving of Officers Just Before Action, He Declares a Blunder—First Division, in Same Place, Had 750 Guns Behind
It Before Advancing.

In the following article, Representative Anthony, Republican, of Kansas, describes his recent trip, with other members of the House Military Affairs Committee, over the ground where the Thirty-fifth Division fought in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. The article was written for Mr. Anthony's paper the Leavenworth Times and is printed in the Post-Dispatch by permission.

Representative Anthony went to France with the avowed intention of getting first-hand information to substantiate or disprove Gov. Allen's charges of inefficiency in the conduct of the Thirty-fifth's part in the fighting. His conclusions, bearing out Gov. Allen's criticisms in some details and at variance with them in others, are of especial interest at this time in view of the recent publication of Colonel Drum's report on the operations of the division recently published in the Post-Dispatch. Representative Anthony's article concludes with a transcript of a stenographer's notes of lectures given to the Congressmen on the battlefield by officers of the A. E. F.

By REPRESENTATIVE
DAN ANTHONY.

On our tour of the battle front we came, a few miles from St. Me-tillery, which is generally composed of larger guns and is operated by the General in command so as to be used where most needed.

Two Roads for Artillery. Maj. Kalloch pointed out to me the two roads over which it was possible to bring forward the artillery, one running to the right of Vauquois and the other running to the left of the hill, to follow up the Thirty-fifth's advance. I made the statement that it was the impression in the United States that the artillery attached to the Thirty-fifth Division had not kept up with the advance of the infantry of the division so as to afford proper protection. Maj. Kalloch stated that this may have been true for parts of two days, but that it was not true as a general rule, and Gen. Summerrall backed up this statement, and made the further explanation that it must be understood that when the Thirty-fifth made its advance these two roads were at that time almost totally destroyed, both by the fire of our own artillery, and more largely by German mines and from the effects of the heavy guns of the Germans, so that it was only by the most herculean efforts that our engineers could repair the roads after our infantry had passed and get them in such condition that the artillery could be brought forward.

The evidence does show, too, that the horses of the artillery were notoriously bad and unfit, and that in moving the guns hurriedly from the eastern front the transportation had been all but exhausted, so that with the torn-up roads, muddy fields, and the lack of horsepower, there is no question that the artillery was tremendously handicapped in keeping up with the advancing troops. I am convinced, from the investigation here on the field, that there were parts of two days, at least, during the five days in which the Thirty-fifth was fighting, that the artillery was not able to give the infantry the close co-operation which should have been the case. Another very pertinent suggestion I found has just come from officers of experience in just such operations as the Thirty-fifth went through, and that is that hereafter an equipment of field guns to advance with the line of infantry, and thus make use of direct instead of indirect artillery fire against machine gun nests, be hereafter adopted.

750 Guns for the First Division. After the First Division had relieved the Thirty-fifth and had found itself up against what seemed to be an impenetrable German barrier, an impetuous himself made the statement to me that he had massed the fire of 750 big guns behind the First Division of regulars before it was enabled to break through the German line.

So the question naturally arises, why could not the brave Missouri and Kansas boys, who had successfully made this their fight against these tremendous odds, have also had the benefit of the cover of such tremendous artillery concentration and the protection of such effective artillery barrages. It was plainly evident from the fact that Gen. Summerrall, soon after taking over the lines of the Thirty-fifth, successfully used such a tremendous artillery support, that good generalship should also have given it to the Thirty-fifth Division. In my opinion, our engineers should have had this additional artillery preparation before the advance from the Montebau Woods. Viewed from this standpoint the criticism of the officers and men of the Thirty-fifth as voiced by Gov. Allen is certainly justified. But this brings up the fact as to whether the conditions of the two main roads of supply was such that it was practicable to have brought up this artillery while the Thirty-fifth was making its advance. Gen. Traub will probably say that it was not, and some of the officers in our party agreed with that view, while others did not, and I myself believe that it was a strategic blunder to have sent these Kansas and Missouri soldiers through this open country, through a terrain almost every foot of which could be searched and covered by the German artillery, without having put back of them every gun it was possible to have brought to bear.

That the men of the Thirty-fifth did their work well no one questions; all agree that our boys accomplished wonders, and their heroism and bravery is praised by all the officers in our party. That many of the units became disorganized and that the men got away from the control of their officers in the last 24 hours before being relieved, is also true. Through lack of proper control when the line reached the Montebau Woods, and before Exermont, the men "piled up." The reserve battalions in their eagerness to get to the front piled into the advance lines. Companies, battalions and regiments did become disorganized, and that this condition of affairs was caused by lack of efficient direction of the division has been intimated in reports filed by staff officers since the battle.

Germans Controlled the Air. In answer to my question as to whether the line of the Thirty-fifth had been adequately protected in the air, the evidence seems to indicate that there were sufficient American planes, or rather French planes operated by American flyers, to direct the artillery fire and for observation purposes, but as to control of the air nearly everyone conceded that the German flyers were most effective; that they were at all times in evidence; that while occasionally American planes showed up over our men, for the most part the fighting infantrymen of the Thirty-fifth Division were continually harassed by them with machine gun fire, the American air force apparently not being sufficient to drive them away. Our officers say that the offensive fighting force of aeroplanes is greatly averted in regard to the damage they can do, but they say that nothing is more helpful to the morale of fighting troops in the field than to have plenty of their own planes flying over them, and nothing more depresses morale than to see the enemy in control of the air. I further confirmed this opinion in a talk which I had with a young German prisoner of war in the prison camp at Tours. I was attracted to this young fellow because of his intelligent face, and after taking him to one side and trying my very bad German on him, soon found that he could talk fairly good English. This man said he was a Sergeant-Major in the German air service and had been flying a Halberstadt machine. He had been captured in the closing days of the war because of making a mistake in landing behind our lines in a dense fog, thinking he was on safe ground. The substance of this German flyer's answers to my questions was, Continued on Page 14.

MISS JOSEPHINE DIXON
WEDS T. P. GLEESON

Marriage Solemnized at St.
Rose's Church, the Rev. Father
McGlynn Officiating.

TWO weddings of interest today will usher in the beginning of the numerous June brides, first among them being the marriage of Miss Josephine B. Dixon to T. Paul Gleeson, which was solemnized at St. Rose's Church at 10 o'clock this morning, with the Rev. Father Mc-Glynn officiating. None but relatives and intimate friends were asked, and the bride's only attendant was Mrs. John McIntyre of Dayton, O., formerly Miss Mary Ramsay of St. Louis, who was matron of honor, and Joseph D. Thompson, the bride's uncle, served as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed in quantities of rare old Duchess and rose point lace, which is an heirloom in both her mother's and father's family. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of the lace and orange blossoms and a butterfly of the lace was caught to the coronet.

Her bouquet was of white roses and sweet peas. Mrs. McIntyre was gowned in gray organdie over pink.
She wore a black tulle hat and carried pink roses and sweet peas. A wedding breakfast followed at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs.
J. H. McClure of 5902 Clemens avenue, and after a honeymoon trip
Mr. Gleeson and his bride will reside temporarily with his mother, Mrs.
Susan Carlton Gleeson, at 5581 Enright avenue. The bride is a graduate of the Visitation and is especially talented in art. Mr. Gleeson was educated at the St. Louis University and was a former city tennis champion.

A SECOND important wedding of the day is that of Miss Winona
Catherine Petring to Burnett Outten, which will take place at 5 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H.
Petring, of 4548 West Pine boulevard. Only the relatives and close friends have been asked to the ceremony which will be performed by the Rev. Dr. John W. Day, but a large reception will follow.

Miss Emma Petring will be her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, and will wear a gown of pink charmeuse veiled in chiffon and trimmed in silver lace. Her bouquet will be a shower of pink and lavender sweet peas. Edward Griffin will be the best man. The bride's gown is of white satin and chiffon elaborately embroidered in seed pearls.
It has a long court train and her tulle veil will fall from a cap of Duchess lace and her bouquet will be of lilies of the valley and gar-denias.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and also of Washington University. Mr. Outten has recently been discharged from the service, where he was a Lieutenant in the Field Artillery Ammunition Train of the Sixth Division, and was overseas.

He is also a graduate of Washington University and resides with his mother at 4501 Laclede avenue.
AN out-of-town wedding of interest today which was to take place in Hollywood, Cal., was that of Miss Helen Gillette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gillette of Denver to Capt. Earl H. Painter of St. Louis.
The bride is a niece of Mrs. G. F.
Paine of the Lucerne apartments with whom she has spent a great deal of her time and of Mrs. Harry D.
Buckley of St. Louis. She is also a niece of Mrs. John Fairbanks of Hollywood, Cal., whose husband is a brother of Douglas Fairbanks and at whose home the marriage will take place. Her parents have gone from Denver to be present at the wedding.
After a two-weeks' motor trip to San Francisco the couple will come to St. Louis to make their home.
Capt. Painter recently returned from France where he served with the 412th Telegraph Battalion. After a short stay here he went to Los Angeles where his parents reside. He was a former coach and captain of the St. Louis University football team and is well known in athletic circles.

MISS Elizabeth Shapleigh Kennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B.
Kennard of 4960 Pershing avenue and Miss Helen Battle of 12 Washington terrace, departed Friday for Little Rock, Ark., where they will be guests of Miss Emily Burrow who on several occasions has been the much-feted guest of Miss Kennard and Miss Battle. Upon Miss Kennard's return she will accompany her family to Harbor Point, Mich., where they will spend the summer.

MISS Adele Hayes, who has sold her home at 4389 Lindell boulevard, will depart June 11 for York Harbor, Me., and other Eastern points for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. William C. McBride of 23
Washington terrace, returned from a visit to Atlantic City and has with her her daughter, Miss Dorothy McBride, who has been a student at the Ogontz School in Pennsylvania
during the past winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Middleton of 5086 Waterman avenue have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Middleton, to Edward Kendall Harrison of Granite City, which took place quietly on Saturday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents with the Rev.
B. T. Kemmerer of St. George's Episcopal Church officiating. Only the family and a few close friends were present. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute, class of 1912, and of

THIN, FRAIL FOLKS NEED
PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.
Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as Nitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Judge & Druggist, Eulerie Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Wolfe-Wilson Drug Co., in St. Louis, and most all druggists, under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, Nitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance and the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health.
Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear.
Full, rosy cheeks, bright eyes, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION.—Although Nitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.—Adv.

NEED FOR MOVIE CENSORSHIP DEBATED

Question Before Convention of International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

A debate on the question as to whether or not there exists a real need for censorship of moving pictures formed the principal subject of discussion today at the morning session of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at Hotel Statler. The convention which has been in session three days closes tomorrow night.

A resolution is expected to be presented tomorrow favoring such a censorship and this morning the affirmative side of the discussion was presented by Mrs. James Hackett of Milwaukee, Wis., who urged the convention to go on record as favoring the establishment of a national board of censors. Such a board, she said, would obviate the incongruities and lack of uniformity illustrated by rulings of state and local boards.

"It is shown by the report of the Pennsylvania Board of Censorship for 1917," Mrs. Hackett said, "that the necessity for superintending the exhibition of moving pictures is not decreasing. There are many producers who, under the guise of public benefactors, drag before the eyes of the public such pictures as those inspired by the Haiselden case, the infamous Brieux picture, 'Damaged Goods,' and who, because of a natural tendency on the part of human nature to indulge in the sensational, make fortunes out of pictures which really do more harm than good.

"In one year, the Pennsylvania board found it necessary to condemn 61 out of 273 reels submitted. About 75 per cent were melodrama, serials of crime pictures, lurid and sensational, and to be compared with the yellow-backed novel, but they were far more harmful because of the vivid portrayal.

"There is no excuse for the vice or sex picture. They are not educational, not even artistic, except sometimes from the photographic standpoint."

Negative View Presented.
Mrs. Margaret Basset of Rochester, N. Y., read a paper prepared by Miss Mary Malloy of San Francisco, outlining the negative view of the necessity for censorship. She urged the encouragement of efforts of those producers and artists who are endeavoring to raise the standard of the photoplay business.

He arrived at the hospital shortly before her death.

BELLEVILLE MAN, BACK FROM FRANCE, DROWNED IN POOL
Joseph Bietsch, 21 years old, of Belleville, who served in France with the 138th Infantry, was drowned at the Ebsen Natatorium, in Belleville, yesterday morning. Although several companions were swimming about and the proprietor of the pool, C. L. Ebsen, was standing near by, no one apparently saw Bietsch sink. Bietsch had gone to the pool with John C. Theis, also of Belleville, who had served with him in the 138th Regiment. When last seen alive he was standing on the steps leading to the water. His friends at first thought he had returned to the dressing room, but when an investigation disclosed that his clothes still were there, several in the party aided Ebsen in searching the pool. Ebsen finally recovered the body. A pulmotor owned by the Belleville Fire Department failed to revive Bietsch. Physicians said he apparently had died from a hemorrhage and advanced the theory that he had fainted and slipped into the water. An inquest will be held tonight. Bietsch is survived by his father, Michael, and several brothers and sisters.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON PREACHES TO ALUMNAE

Condemns "Childless Apartments" and Divorce Evil in Sermon.

Apartment houses "which must by law be childless" were condemned by Archbishop Glennon in his sermon before the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at the New Cathedral yesterday.

"Children are excluded from these apartment houses," the Archbishop said, "because they get on people's nerves. When people find that childhood gets on their nerves, it is time they should be committed to places where nervous diseases are treated. The apartments housing such persons should be called by the same name as the institutions which treat nervous diseases."

"Where Style is Supreme," the Archbishop asked, "which with its missionaries and prophets made its appeal to the nation in the days preceding the war; which conceded no honor to motherhood, but proclaimed it as a burden and a folly—proclaimed its avoidance to be both economic and patriotic, even though the means should be criminal; which taught the supremacy of selfishness and denied sacrifice?"

"It was this philosophy that has led to your apartment house, that must by law be childless—your locality where style is supreme, but motherhood is a disgrace. It is this nefarious philosophy that must be rooted out, and in its place restored the laws of nature and of God, which means that the mother and the child—or, rather, the mother and the children—shall take the first place in the esteem, respect and support of all the people."

"This, I would say, should be for you Catholic women, the very first plank in your plan for restoration. Speaks Against Divorce."

"For the second work, I would suggest another, which is intimately associated, if not identical with the first. It is, namely, the sanctity and stability of the marriage bond. So much has been said of the evil of divorce that I do not care to treat it now. It must, however, always be remembered that divorce, as a system, bears down on womanhood."

"First of all, she, the weaker, generally is the victim, and with her are punished the children also. The few exceptions to this general rule are not the mothers, nor the honored ones of their sex. These few appear to profit by divorce and its publicities, but the rank and file leave the courtroom abandoned and homeless."

"The true wife and the devoted and self-sacrificing mother wants the protection of a home that is permanent, and of a marriage bond which, itself, is permanent, and protects the permanency of the home. Such is according to the law and the Gospel of our Blessed Master, and lies at the very foundation of our social and national well-being."

Archbishop Glennon also urged that all mothers, and not only the mothers of soldiers, should be honored. The latter part of his address was given to praise of the convent system of education.

NONE OF BELLEVILLE JUSTICES HOME TO TRY SUNDAY AUTOIST

So St. Louis Doctor, Arrested for Speeding on Way to Visit One of Them, Is Released.

None of the Belleville justices were at home yesterday, so Dr. George E. Grapf of 2318 Lafayette avenue, St. Louis, escaped trial on the charge of speeding.

Grapf and his daughter, Miss Edna Grapf, were skimming along the rock road toward Belleville when a motor cycle policeman overhauled them and arrested the doctor, who escorted him to the police station. It happened that the doctor was on his way to visit Justice Osterhaus, so Sgt. Arbogast tried to find him to sit on his friend's case, but he was out of town. All the other justices were found to be out.

Under these circumstances, for which Dr. Grapf was in no wise to blame, Sgt. Arbogast did not feel warranted in holding the doctor. So he was warned to offend no more and permitted to depart.

URGE USE OF CITY DOCK FUND TO AID RECREATION PROGRAM

Tenth Ward Committee Believes Pools, Concerts and Dances More Essential Than River Plans.

A resolution recommending that the city expend $300,000 which it recently appropriated for the extension of the municipal docks, for the continuance of bathing pools, park band concerts and public dances instead was adopted yesterday by the tax committee of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association. The committee pointed out that the association is on record favoring the dock extension, but believes at this time that public recreation, which has been curtailed, is the more essential.

The committee also declared that it would recommend that the association ask the City Assessor to examine the assessments of property being used for educational and religious purposes. It expressed its belief that much property now listed as such is being used for other purposes.

WOMEN, CAUGHT IN FIRE, CARRIED DOWN LADDERS

Four women, trapped by flames on the third floor of a boarding house at 4119 Westminster place at 3:15 o'clock this morning, were carried down a ladder. One was overcome by smoke and the others were hysterical from fright. They were Mrs. Jane Whiting, who conducts the boarding house; Mrs. Nellie Hogg, Miss Lucille Wilburn and Mrs. Effie House. The latter was unconscious.

Seven other persons were on the second floor when the fire was discovered, but managed to escape. In their night attire by running down a smoke-filled stairway. They were Philip Hale and wife, James Arbuckle and wife, Lynn Ferguson and wife and Miss Zella Woodson. Neighbors were attracted by the fire.

flames and the cries of the women who were on the third floor. A fire rope attached to a front window on the third floor was thrown out by Mrs. Whiting, but she and the other women were afraid to make use of it, and remained at the windows calling for help until firemen arrived.

Mrs. Whiting, Miss Wilburn and Mrs. House were carried down by members of Fire Engine Company 24. Mrs. Hogg was taken down the ladder by C. G. Bohannon, 4131 Westminster place, who put on a bathrobe and pair of moccasins and ran to the fire when awakened by cries for help.

The fire started beneath a stairway in the basement and spread through rear stairways to the roof. The damage to the building was estimated at $2000 and to contents about $1500. Firemen said that the blaze apparently was due to defective electric wiring.

Mrs. Whiting said that $200, which had been concealed in the mattress of her bed, was missing after the fire.

Sergt. York Preaches to Crowd Under Trees, Then Wanders Away With Girl

Five Hundred Mountaineers Gather at Pall Mall to Join Hero in Decorating Graves and Hear Him Sing and Speak.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PALL MALL, Tenn., by courier to Crossville, June 1.—Coming down from the mountains for miles above Wolf River, riding in wagons, on horse and mule, the people of the upper Cumberland Mountains gathered here today to welcome home the world's greatest hero, Sergt. Alvin York. It was the annual decoration day of Fentress County at the Upchurch burying ground.

On a hillside in Wolf Valley more than 500 of York's people assembled in the morning, the girls in their Sunday best and the women with their little ones in arms. The services were held under the trees by the Methodist circuit rider, and the Rev. R. C. Pile, pastor of York's church, the Church of Christ in Christian Union. Before the "preaching" flowers were strewn upon the graves of the civilians and the soldier dead of the Civil War, Union and rebel alike lying in the little mountain cemetery.

As the people were gathering, York himself came to the meeting place. Beside him was Miss Gracie Williams, his young sweetheart and the belle of the valley. From her home they had walked to the Upchurch graveyard through old, forgotten roads.

Wild Flowers in Bloom.
Over the hillside, mountain laurel was blooming and the wild rose all in pink. And Gracie Williams, her blue eyes downcast and her pink silk dress blending with the mountain flowers that grew along the lane, seemed like another wild rose.

Men came up to shake the sergeant's hand, but as soon as he could break away he and Gracie Williams walked over to the edge of the clearing and sat upon one of the wagon seats. There they sat apart while the crowd that had come many miles to give the sergeant welcome home mixed with itself and talked of other things. Everyone said it was strange when the meeting opened and "big un" was not under the tree leading the singing of the woodland choir. That function which had in past been his was now being performed by his brother Joe.

Alvin stayed upon the wagon seat and talked to the girl by his side. Then they went for him. York came, joined sang choir, and his clear, tenor voice, the hymns his brother lead. Then Pastor Pile made a talk upon the decoration of the graves. After him, Sergt. York was presented to preach to them.

The crowd gathered closer. Wearing his medals, the six-foot Sergeant stood beneath the tree and told them how glad he was to be home. "It is with the deepest love towards you that I speak today," he said. "Love for you and for all my people thrills my heart again when I meet with you. I am glad that I have the privilege of standing before you again in meeting."

"Throw Flowers of Kindness."
"It has been two years since we have met here for this decoration. There were some here then who are not among us today and there are some today who will not be when we meet again while we are spreading flowers for the dead we should remember to throw flowers of kindness in the paths of those still living and help them live a Christian life."

"We know if we trust and obey God no harm can come upon us. The Scriptures say, 'Lo, I will be with you always, even to the end of the world.' If we don't go astray we will be protected by the great and powerful hand of God. There is a place beyond the throne for those who will obey."

"I have almost seen in the dark hours of midnight a vision into the pearly gates of heaven. There are things that compel men to think of God. It is hard to be in the dark hours of night and see no one nearer, yet hear men dying not far away and hear them pray to God to save them who have put off their prayers to their last hour. It is a sad thing to hear men to your right and left asking God between their groans to have mercy on them."

"It is all right to ask the Lord have mercy, but don't put it off until the end is near. We should lead a Christian life so we can look up and say, 'Lord, I'm ready.' Christ will take you safely through the dark valley of death."

"We may go against God and be millionaires but when the call comes we are going. My advice to you all is from this day decide to prepare for the future that is to come. If we are ready when the call comes, we can march into the land beyond."

"If I were a preacher—and I'm not but I am a simple country boy—I would think that one of the highest of honors, to be chosen from the multiplied millions to do God's work, while I have been gone, God has been my helper and keeper. Without the hand of God I know that I would not be here today. I have placed myself in the hands of a man who never lost and never will lose a battle."

Picnic Dinner Served.
After the services, huge baskets of pies and fried chicken and cake and ham were opened and their contents spread on white table cloths on the ground. Beside the little graveyard the people mingled and chatted while they dined. But York and his sweetheart took their basket off into the woods.

York at home was a different man from the reserved, cool soldier who had received the plaudits of the cities. He was all smiles and full of talk to those around him. He told his mother today positively that he would accept none of the flattering offers to go on the stage. One of these was for $1000 a night for 30 nights, another for $1000 a week for a year. He intends to settle down upon the farm which the people of Tennessee will give him at Pall Mall, Tenn.

York's family is preparing to move with him to the farm as soon as it is purchased. There are six brothers and two sisters and a mother who will accompany the mountaineer hero to his new home in addition to the wife whom York expects to install in the new possession.

York's family is poor. Eleven children of the mountain blacksmith were all reared in the two-room cabin at Pall Mall. Mrs. Mary York, the mother, is a little woman about 60 years old, worn with the toll of years, yet active as one 20 years younger. She is literally wrapped up in her oldest boy for whose return she has lived the last two years. The younger Yorks have been working on neighbors' farms while the head of the family was in France.

The small York farm is not enough to support the family. York's people are Christian citizens and not of the mountaineer type of fiction.

Prominent Doctor Says: Ninety Per Cent of All Diseases Are Caused By Constipation

You can't be well if your system is clogged. Even contagious diseases will not take hold if the system is kept clean out.

In taking a remedy for constipation, great care must be exercised in selecting a preparation which will do the work without leaving any ill after effects.

PINKO-LAXIN is being prescribed by many physicians as an excellent remedy in the treatment of CONSTIPATION, STOMACH and LIVER TROUBLES.

Do not compare PINKO-LAXIN with the many nasty, vile tasting laxative tablets on the market. PINKO-LAXIN tastes like candy, can be given to children of all ages and is the most delicate person.

At all drug stores, 15c, 35c and $1.00.

Injuries of most of those taken from the building by firemen were slight. There were some one hundred of these.

Four thousand spectators were in the theater and when the fire broke out in the operator's cabinet there was a mad rush for the exits. Many children were thrown down and trampled upon.

HOW RHEUMATISM BEGINS

The excruciating agonies of rheumatism are usually the result of failure of the kidneys to expel poisons from the system. If the irritation is allowed to continue, incurable bladder or kidney disease may result. Attend to it at once. The sick kidneys must be restored to health by the use of some sterilizing remedy which will prevent a return of the disease.

Get some GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. They have brought back the joys of life to countless thousands of sufferers from rheumatism, lame back, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel and other affections of the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder and allied organs.

They will attack the poisons at once, clear out the kidneys, and the soothing, healing oils and herbs will restore the inflamed tissues and organs to normal health.

All others are imitations. Ask for GOLD MEDAL and be sure the name GOLD MEDAL is on the box. Three sizes, at all good druggists.—ADV.

THERE is no general class of men who understand so thoroughly, and appreciate so well, the service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as do the farmers of the Middle West.

Wherever he may live the farmer is as familiar with the dark green tank wagon as he is with the conveyance which brings the mail carrier. He knows that his requirements of petroleum products will be provided.

He depends upon the service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), confident that the company will deliver to him whatever products he needs, when he needs them, and at a price which is fair.

During the past two or three strenuous years the farmer of America has carried the responsibility for feeding the world. Every hour of every day he was busy, and every minute was precious.

To multiply the effectiveness of his own and his employees' labor, he installed modern equipment—tractors, trucks, cultivating and harvesting machinery.

To run these machines gasoline, kerosene, lubricating oils, and greases were absolutely necessary. To get them the farmer would have been forced to take hours of time going to town were it not for the distributing facilities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). The Company brought the products he needed to the farm, even to the tractor in the field.

It is this kind of service which has brought the farmer and the Company into such close and such friendly relations. It is this kind of service which emphasizes the usefulness of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as a public servant.

BOYS FIGHT OFF MAN TRYING TO ROB THEM

Highwayman in St. Louis Park
Fires Six Times When Two Youths Give Battle.

A highwayman who attempted to hold up Francis and William Moran, 2218 North Market street, and John Tybura, 2241 North Market street, in St. Louis Park at 10 o'clock last night, emptied his revolver at the boys when they sought to disarm him and later chased him through the park and to Twenty-third and Benton streets. All the shots went wild.

The boys told police they were seated on a bench when the stranger stopped in front of them and asked for a cigarette. When they told him they did not smoke he pulled a revolver and remarked he would "find out for himself" whether the boys had any "smokes." He started to search Francis Moran, when young Tybura, seeing a favorable opportunity, jumped on the man's back. He wiggled free from Tybura and, turning, fired one shot and fled. As the boys pursued he stopped and fired five more shots before he disappeared.

Take Doves From Cage.
Weights for druggist scales, a pair of live doves and eggs, oranges and cabbages were included in the loot carried off by burglars in a number of burglaries reported to police yesterday.

The weights were taken from the drug store of Joseph Sanders, 1001 O'Fallon street, by thieves who cut out a panel in a rear door to get into the place. They took also 15,000 cigarettes, a quantity of cigars, candy, etc., amounting to about $200, from the store.

The doves were taken from a cage in the home of Mrs. Anna Nati, 1039A Julia street. The thieves took nothing else from this home. Downstairs in the home of Mrs. Josephine Perutka, 1039 Julia street, the burglars emptied the icebox, taking fruits and vegetables.

The bakery and living apartments of Albert Maushardt, 3139 South Grand avenue, was ransacked by burglars during the absence of the family yesterday. From the home the thieves stole jewelry valued at $200 and from the cash register in the bakery $20.

At the home of Mrs. Joseph Banks, 3542 Caroline street, burglars ignored jewelry, taking only $25 in cash they found in a drawer.

Burglars Climb Pole.
Burglars carried away $350 worth of spark plugs from the Globe Electric Co., 234-24 Locust street, after they had climbed a pole to the roof of an adjoining building and from thence into a second-floor window of the electric company. Police later, searching the neighborhood, found most of the plugs in a shed at the rear of 2816 Locust street, where they had been cached by the thieves.

Lina Williams, 2946 Easton avenue, was robbed of a purse and $5 by two negro boys, who snatched a handbag from her arm a half block from her home, last night. After taking out the money the boys threw the empty purse at her and fled into an alley.

Nathan H. Hall, 3938 Palm street, Alderman, was the victim of automobile thieves last night. He left his car parked at Ninth street and Washington avenue while he called on friends at the Statler Hotel. It was gone when he started home.

The automobile of John Braunell, 6432 Lloyd avenue, was stolen from King's highway and Westminster place.

GIRL KILLED BY BLOODPOISONING BECAME BLIND BEFORE DEATH

Miss Margaret Clay Thompson III, 29 years old, daughter of Dr. C. Thompson, 9 Wesley avenue, Ferguson, whose funeral took place May 23, had become blind just before her death in Washington, D. C., May 21, it was learned today.

Miss Thompson was employed in a clerical capacity in the Government ammunition service at Washington. She had established a reputation for efficiency and was included in the list of those who were to have been retained in the department in 1920. Infection developed after she had pricked a small pimple on her lip with a needle and in spite of the efforts of specialists to prevent its spread it reached her left eye, destroying the sight and threatening the sight of her other eye. Her death occurred seven weeks after the blood poisoning developed.

The body was taken to Blossom, Texas, for burial. Friends and relatives from many points in Texas and Oklahoma, where the Thompsons formerly resided, attended the funeral.

MAN WITH STOLEN AUTO HELD
Says Car Was Placed in His Charge for Night by Another.

An automobile belonging to Edward H. Bube, 4306 Enright avenue, stolen from the National League baseball park yesterday afternoon, was found by police in a garage at the rear of a rooming house at 1305 Armstrong avenue at 10 p. m. Robert Smeder, 21 years old, a painter, rooming at that address, admitted putting the car in the garage earlier in the evening and was arrested. He said he did not know to whom the car belonged. He gave the name of a man who, he said, had left the machine with him, asking him to take care of it for the night.

Should Husbands Pay Their Wives Wages?

Putting Marriage on a Business Basis Would Close the Door to Romance—And, Anyway, Could Husbands Pay Their Wives Wages?—Is There a Husband Wealthy Enough to Pay for a Devoted Wife's Love?

By Fay Stevenson

ACCORDING to a writer in the London Daily Mail, English wives recently were insisting that husbands pay them wages.

"Women who have been managers of aircraft works and other businesses during the war have different ideas of their value from those they had before. Nothing will induce them to be voluntary workers any more. They see that work is only valued when paid for, and it is not good for 'hubbies' to have so much done for him for nothing."

Evidently the writer appreciates that an arrangement under which a husband pays his wife wages carries with it certain obligations which the wife must meet, and that the husband may very well answer the demands of his spouse as follows:

"Right! You shall have your wages and I shall expect efficiency. No office was ever so badly run as some homes. That is the fault of the 'voluntary worker,' no doubt. Let the wives have wages in the future. Then husbands can bring home what they like for dinner. They can pay half a crown extra!"

Perhaps the Englishman may approve of paying his wife wages, perhaps not—that is a question for him to decide for himself, but "OH, I say," wouldn't all the romance of life be gone?

Of course the moment we put marriage on such a business basis we close the door to romance. It would not be a case of, "I am marrying the man I love," but "I am marrying the man who will pay me the highest wages." Business is business every time. And instead of getting a separation because "I love Mr. So and So better than my husband," the honest, frank, little business wife will tell you, "I am getting a separation because Mr. So and So has offered me better wages."

When money and allowances look pretty weak beside actual wages, and then supposing your next door neighbor should earn $5 more a week than you—what then? And if we are to have wages why not have a Wives' Union and if things don't just suit us go on a strike every now and then? And if we really are going to have wages why not have apprentices' wages—why not be paid during the engagement period? Think of the long, long stretches we sit in our drawing rooms and libraries entertaining our prospective husbands. Think of the gas or electricity bills poor dad has to foot and the many times we have to stick pins in our thumbs to keep ourselves warm while HE is describing the lovely little home he is going to take us to in the near future. It seems to me that a real "time-saving" business woman should have wages for such social duties. If we are to receive wages as wives why not receive wages as sweethearts and get right in the same boat with the females who sue for heart-balm? If marriage is a matter of money why not start out right in the beginning and show what good business women we are?

I do not believe for one single moment that the average little blushing bride will ever accept wages from her husband. She is fitted out with enough clothes to last her for two or three years, if she doesn't pay too much attention to the latest styles, and no one but the little bride herself ever knows how she hates to take the first roll of money her husband hands her. It makes no difference whether it is for rent, household expenses, an upright piano, or personal use, she has either been used to taking her money from dad or making it for herself, and she feels just a little bit bashful about taking HIS money for the first time. I admit that it's much easier to take it the second and third times, and after a time she will actually ask him for money, even demand it, but oh! it does hurt the first time if she has that delicate fine feeling of the well-bred girl.

And as for the husband—well the average husband is pretty good to his wife. If the truth were known she gets all of his pay envelope in many cases, gives him his "pin money," pays his tailor bills, club dues, etc., and either deposits the rest in the bank or at the bargain counters.

Wives may long for the first of July, the picture of every siren in the rogues' gallery and many, many things, but they do not long for a separation because "I love Mr. So and So better than my husband," the honest, frank, little business wife will tell you, "I am getting a separation because Mr. So and So has offered me better wages."

Dancing Stories to Children

THE mothers and fathers of every nation tell stories to their children, but did you ever know that stories could be danced? Wouldn't you think your mother was just a little bit queer if she should say, "Come on out in the garden dear, and we'll dance stories for a while?" Yet this is just exactly what mothers in a certain far-off country say to their children, and "dancing"

stories is just exactly what all the people of that country, parents and children both, do. The country is Lithuania, a small place about the size of New York State, and is on the Baltic Sea. Look it up on your map if you don't know exactly where it is, and then come back and see how the little Lithuanians tell stories with their feet, their hands, their heads, their shoulders, everything but their tongues, which surely here in America tell most of the stories, don't they?

The children in Lithuania, with their mother, maybe their father, too, and perhaps some of the neighbors, gather in a ring for story-dancing for all the world as if they were going to play drop-the-handkerchief. Then one of them enters the circle and he begins to tell his story. One of the favorites is the story of The Ggag Swimmer, who stayed under water for hours upon hours, and fell in love with a mermaid, but finally had to leave her and go back to his army and help fight the Teutonic Knights, the German oppressors, who, like the Germans of today, thought they could rule the world.

The little Lithuanian boy will begin his story by dancing along beside an imaginary pool, which he finally dives into, or pretends to. It's all pretend, you know, just as you pretend when you play doctor, or church, or war. Then he will wiggle along the ground for a while, showing different strokes. Then he makes love to the mermaid, and finally he leaves her, and goes back, with a march step, to his army, where in a grand crash of arms, which he imitates and dances out, he is victorious over the Teutonic Knights. Then he dances away, and returns to the circle and it is his sister's turn.

Thus the little Lithuanians tell stories by the hour. And here's the best part of it. For it's really so much fun that even grownups can't give it up.

Why don't you try it some time?

Mill Workers Give Pageant

INDUSTRY was personified in pageantry at the Southern Textile Exposition, held in Greenville, S. C., recently.

Two hundred and fifty members of the various industrial clubs organized and directed by the Greenville Young Women's Christian Association, the pageant on the stage of Textile Hall, where the exposition was held, and through graceful dancing and skillful acting illustrated the part that women took in the world of industry during the war and are still taking in the industrial progress of the country.

Among clubs which took part were those from Monaghan Mill, Poe Mill, Dunbar Mill, American Spinning Co., Brandon Mill, Judson Mill and Woodson Mill, all of Greenville. The pageant was witnessed by employers, industrial welfare workers and other mill representatives from various parts of the country.

Work of the clubs is directed by Margaret L. Riegel, Y. W. C. A. field organizer for mill villages, and Irene Dickson, industrial secretary of the Greenville Y. W. C. A. Mathilde Vossler, Y. W. C. A. recreation director for the South Atlantic States, directed the pageant, which was written by Josephine Thorp.

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Black Dandy's Fall.

EVERYBODY was happy in Catville until Black Dandy, the Dude, appeared in town one day. All the cats and kittens were satisfied with everything they had, but when Black Dandy came matters began to change.

No one knew where he came from—he just came, that's all that was known. Then one day Black Dandy appeared on the street of Catville with a black silk hat and a cane.

He wore a red tie and a white collar, but even that might not have caused trouble if the Three Little Kittens had not seen Dandy walking with Miss Tabby. Their brother Tom's sweetheart.

The Three Little Kittens thought their big brother Tom was the very handsomest cat in Catville, and besides that he could boss all the other cats about town.

First the Three Little Kittens called Black Dandy little, but he did not seem to mind that at all. He smiled, in fact, and thought it was a compliment to his good looks.

"He has got Brother Tom's girl out walking," said the Three Little Kittens. "We must do something to drive the Dude out of town."

The next day they found a way, for down the street came Black Dandy the Dude, with a ribbon in his hand and on the other end of the ribbon he had a rat.

Black Dandy thought he looked very fine, leading his tame rat by the ribbon, but the Three Little Kittens saw a chance to get even.

First they stared with wide open eyes at the Dude, they were so amazed, in fact, and then they whispered to the other two and down from the fence they jumped and ran down the street.

By and by they came back, all smiling, and jumping about as if they could not keep still with joy.

"We must get up on the fence where we can see everything," they said. "And don't lose the cheese."

One of the Kittens had a bag under his arm and when he was nicely seated on the fence he opened the bag and gave a piece to the other two. "Don't throw it until he is right up to us," he said.

Pretty soon along came Black Dandy, on his way back home, and when he reached the Three Little Kittens down dropped a piece of cheese right in front of the rat he was leading.

"You are very kind to my pet," said Black Dandy, turning toward the fence, with his back to the street, which was just what the Three Kittens wanted him to do. Then the second kitten dropped a piece of cheese, and by and by the third; but the kittens were more interested now in something they saw across the street than in watching the rat.

Mr. Terrier Dog came bounding across the street right at the pet rat, and when Black Dandy saw him he dropped the ribbon and ran, and so did the rat, and Mrs. Terrier after it.

Oh, how the Three Little Kittens laughed and screamed! "Go after him, Terry! Catch him, Terry!" they said, and then they saw something that made them laugh louder. Black Dandy caught his feet in the ribbon and down he went into the mud, his black silk hat rolling off into a puddle of water.

The rat broke away from the ribbon.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

—00—
By Herman J. Stiech

FOUR blue blood will cash fearfully few checks unless it's fortified by a plentiful supply of red blood. The world's intensely interested in the quality of your deed—not the slightest concerned with your origin or breed.

Your great-grandparents may have turned this globe topsy-turvy. But when all's said and done, they're dead ones. And the world wants live ones. If you're banking on a boost by virtue of your ancient family tree, you're venturing on a precariously thin branch.

There's an eloquent, though silent, tragedy in the story of many a son of an eminent man. Leaning on the false prop of ancestry there have been fatal crashes when the pillars gave way—as they frequently do.

Decoration by no means guarantees distinction. Often than not, it precludes it. In their day, your father or grandfather may have been "big bugs"—but they can't keep you from being stepped on. It's a patent fact that our leaders come from the masses—not from the classes. The common people are God's favorites.

WITH THE INVENTORS

BRITISH engineers have built over the River Tigris, at Bagdad, a bridge to withstand the heaviest traffic, yet which automatically meets the rise and fall of the river and can withstand severe floods.

For polishing metal a machine has been invented that does the work with a belt which passes at high speed over a pulley made up of an iron hub fitted with 225 leather blades to give it a cushion effect.

A new form letter printing machine cuts paper fed from rolls into the proper sizes, uses three colors of ink when desired and automatically changes the names and addresses for each letter produced.

bon that held him and down the street he went, Terry after him, and soon they were out of sight. But poor Black Dandy's pride had fallen with him. He got up from the muddy street, gave one cross look at the Three Little Kittens on the fence, who howled with delight, and ran, and from that day to this Catville has never seen him.

"We don't want any new dudes in our town," said the Three Little Kittens, "or old dudes, either. We must want nice-mannered cats and kittens."

"I guess Brother Tom won't have any trouble winning Miss Tabby now, and we will have all the ice cream we want at the wedding."

And they did, for when Mr. Tom Cat married Miss Tabby the Three Little Kittens were each given a spoon and told to help themselves to the ice cream, for their brother Tom knew who drove Black Dandy out of town, though he didn't tell.

An Epic of the Rise of an American City

CHAPTER XX (Continued).

"Nothing of the slightest importance!" he managed to say. "I was just leaving. Good afternoon!" And with long strides he reached the door, and hastened through the hall; but before he closed the front door he heard from Janie and Mary Sharon the outburst of wild, irrepressible emotion which his performance had inspired.

He drove home in a tumultuous mood, and almost ran down two ladies who were engaged in absorbing conversation at a crossing. They were his Aunt Fanny and the stout Mrs. Johnson; a jerk of the reins at the last instant saved them by a few inches; but their conversation was so interesting that they were unaware of their danger, and did not notice the runaway, nor how close it came to them. George was so furious with himself and with the girl whose unexpected coming into a room could make him look such a fool, that it might have soothed him a little if he had actually run over the two ladies, and almost threw the driver to the floor. George swore, and then swore again at the fat old darkey, Tom, for giggling at his swearing.

"Hoopie!" said old Tom. "Muss been some white lady use Mist' Jawge mighty bad! White lady say, 'No, suh, I ain't go'n out ridin' 'ith Mist' Jawge no mo'! Mist' Jawge drive in. 'Dam de dam wort! Dam de dam wort! Dam de dam nigra! Dam de dam nigra! Hoopie!'"

"That'll do!" George said sternly. "Yesuh!"

George strode from the stable, crossed the Major's back yard, then passed behind the new houses, on his way home. These structures were now approaching completion, but still in a state of rawness hideous to George—though, for that matter, they were never to be anything except hideous to him. Behind them, stray planks, bricks, refuse of plaster and lath, shingles, straw, empty barrels, strips of twisted tin and broken tiles were strewn everywhere over the dried and pitted gray mud where the suave lawn had laid like a green lake around those stately islands, the two Amberson houses.

And George's state of mind was not improved by his present view of this repulsive area, and by his sense of the suavity of the law that laid like a green lake around those stately islands, the two Amberson houses.

and, glancing toward the street, saw his mother standing with Eugene Morgan upon the cement path that led to the front gate. She was bareheaded, and Eugene held his hat and stick in his hand; evidently he had been calling upon her, and she had come from the house with him, continuing their conversation and delaying their parting.

They had paused in their slow walk from the front door to the gate, yet still stood side by side, their shoulders almost touching, as though neither Isabel nor Eugene quite realized that their feet had ceased to bear them forward; and they were not looking at each other, but at some indefinite point before them, as people do who consider together thoughtfully and in harmony. The conversation was evidently serious; his head was bent, and Isabel's lifted left hand rested against her cheek; but all the significances of their thoughts, and Isabel's devoted companionableness and a shared understanding. Yet, a stranger, passing, would not have thought them married; somewhere about Eugene, not quite to be located, there was a romantic gravity, and Isabel, tall and graceful, with high color and absorbing eyes, was visibly no wife walking down to the gate with her husband.

George stared at them. A hot dislike struck him at the sight of Eugene; and a vague revulsion, like a strange, unpleasant taste in the mouth, came over him as he looked at his mother; her manner was eloquent of so much thought about her companion and of such reliance upon him. And the picture the two thus made was a vivid one indeed, to George, whose angry eyes, for some reason, fixed themselves most intently upon Isabel's lifted hand, upon the white ruffe at her wrist, bordering the graceful black sleeve, and upon the little indentations in her cheek where the tips of her fingers rested. She should not have worn white at her wrist, or at the throat either, George felt; and then, strangely, his resentment concentrated upon those tiny indentations at the tips of her fingers—actual changes, however slight and fleeting in his mother's face, made because of Mr. Eugene Morgan. For a moment, it seemed to George that Morgan might have claimed the ownership of a face that changed for him. It was as if he owned Isabel.

The two began to walk on toward the gate, where they stopped again, turning to face each other, and Isabel's glance, passing Eugene, fell upon George. Instantly she smiled and waved her hand to him, while Eugene turned and nodded, but George, standing as in some rigid trance and staring straight at them, gave these signals of greeting no sign of recognition whatever. Upon this, Isabel called to him, waving her hand again.

National Federation of Business and Professional Women Offer Solution of Housing Problem

THE National Federation of Business and Professional Women will tackle the problem of inadequate housing at exorbitant rentals. They propose to establish a plan which business and professional women can live in maximum comfort at minimum expense. Miss Florence King, Miss Mamie L. Bass and Miss Lena Madelin Phillips, leaders of various groups of business and professional women, agree that unless a business woman is comfortably housed she cannot render her full value in the business world.

The solution that the National Federation will offer will include plans for apartment houses, hotels to be erected in various cities which will return an income of from 4 to 6 per cent on the investment. The hotel will probably be modeled after the hotel for women which is now in process of erection at Washington, D. C. This hotel will be finished next year. It will house 325 guests and will require a staff of 100 assistants, most of which will be women. The rooms in the hotel will rent for about $25 a month and will include such privileges as sewing and laundry rooms together with kitchenette. Adequate dining rooms at reasonable rates are a part of the hotel plan. The apartment house will provide apartments consisting of living room, two bed rooms, bath and kitchenette, which will allow for group housekeeping. The rentals of these apartments are now estimated at about $40 a month.

Miss King of Chicago is the president of the Women's Association of Commerce of the U. S. A. Miss Bass is the leader of the National Business Club, and Miss Phillips is the Executive Secretary of the National Business Women's Committee, with headquarters in New York.

Clean an Alarm Clock

TAKE the clock apart. Remove it from the case. Boil the works in strong, soapy water with about two teaspoonfuls of kerosene; dry the works thoroughly, then oil well with kerosene oil. Now put your clock together, wind and you have a new clock.

On a clock which was stopped for a long time as useless, this remedy was tried, and it has run well for months. It has saved a bill at a repair shop.—New York Evening Telegram.

THE LATEST From Queen Fashion's Paris Court

PARIS, May 19.—She drew her cape of navy duvety and heavy wool becomingly about her, and stopped to look at something or some one, evidently very interesting. Perhaps it was one of the "world celebrities." They often walk in the Paris gardens these days, you know.

Sitting down to a good meal

may not be important for poets to rhapsodize over, but to mere man it is decidedly worth-while. And she who creates such a meal has (to him) just about got all the goddesses backed off the map.

The delightful thing about Valier's Enterprise Flour is that through sheer high quality it is able to raise the whole standard of home-baking. Your neighbors are using this supreme flour—aren't you?

Phone your grocer today.

Higher Journalism.

"Just a moment before you start to writing your interview with Flappers, the aviator," said the city editor.

"Yes, sir?" replied the youthful reporter.

"See if you can't describe him without using 'intrepid.' The word has been a trifle overworked in connection with aviators."

Time Limit.

"It says here that a Missouri man boasts that he has an umbrella that has been in his possession for 20 years," said Smith.

"Well," replied Jones, "that's long enough. He ought to return it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Useful Animal.

"Why do you keep that porcupine about the place?"

"Well, these motorists didn't mind running over my hens, but they give that porcupine a wide berth. They don't want no punctured tires."—San Francisco Chronicle.

It Was Tried Once.

"I believe that everybody ought to say exactly what he thinks in his own way."

"And yet," replied the slow-speaking man, "that plan didn't seem to help much at the Tower of Babel."—Detroit Free Press.

ADAM WAS RIGHT.

Snakes are really among man's best friends.—Dr. Raymond Dittmars, Curator of the Bronx Zoo.

When in a magazine I read that Doctor Raymond Dittmars said That one can take a snake and make A boon companion of him.

I caught a blacksnake in the grass, enclosed him in a bowl of glass And fed him most and named him Pete And tried to learn to love him.

Bue when he got to roving free around the parlor after me, When on a chair he'd sit and stare, A shiver running through him,

And when he coiled about my plate observing everything I ate Or tried to twist about my wrist I couldn't cotton to him.

He used to squirm across my bed, entwine himself about my head At dead of night, and though I might Be very tired and sleepy,

It always waked me with a start and stalled the pulsing of my heart And when he'd rest upon my chest I felt extremely creepy.

That snakes, when kindly treated can become the firmest friends of man,

Staunch, true and tried, is testified By people who have had 'em.

But I my lonely way shall wend without another reptile friend, Since I had pete my heart has bent With sympathy for Adam!

CONVICTIONS IN BOTH CASES.

The difference between the Kaiser and Government ownership of railroads is that the latter has been tried.

NOT STRICTLY COMMERCIAL.

It cost us thirty-five dollars apiece to send our soldiers overseas. And the Germans would have gladly paid twice that amount per man to keep them home.

NO DRY LAW OVER THERE.

We can lay off a few transports after June 30. The boys won't be in such a hurry to get home.

THEY'LL BE WELCOME.

After the armistice the American tourists will help a lot toward regaling France.
